

Second Report:

By GARRY NIVER

The San Mateo County Committee on School District Organization met in augmented session with the local school boards Tuesday night, October 30, with hopes of voting on the approval of the tentative unification plan.

Instead, the committee was sent home with a pocketful of questions for another month of study. The next meeting will take place Wednesday, November 28, in the Westlake High School library.

The 11-member committee, along with the trustees of Jefferson Elementary, Jefferson High School, Laguna Salada, Bayshore and Brisbane districts, are trying to coincide on a tentative reorganization proposal in compliance with the Master Plan Law passed by the State Legislature in 1959.

The committee must present a county-wide plan for a unified school district to the State Board of Education by September, 1963. This was the second meeting of a four-part gathering on the North County section. The next meeting will also be devoted to study and the adopting of a plan, with the final meeting being a public hearing.

Questions Hinder Unification Plan

Once the plan has been accepted, it will be submitted to the State Board of Education and then put on the ballot, and given back to the people for popular vote.

At last Tuesday night's session the committee was met with a deluge of questions from the trustees, which were either unanswerable or required further study. At one point in the meeting Dr. Russell Kent, consultant to the committee, arose and said "We must subdue the kind of negative thinking which is going on here right now."

He later admonished the trustees for asking too many hypothetical questions which could not be answered.

The main discussion lodged around the assessed valuation of property if the districts combined and alternate unification plans. The assessed valuation per pupil of all the districts, with the exception of Laguna Salada, would be lower.

Bayshore district would yield the most, with the valuation plummeting from $14,127 per pupil to $4,740 by 1965. Laguna Salada, which now has an assessed rate of $3,956, would rise to $4,740 in 1965.

The Jefferson Elementary district, whose appraised valuation per pupil is projected to be $6,549 in 1965, will fall to $4,740 in 1965.

Three tentative reorganization plans were proposed but all were discarded because of various flaws. Allen Rigler of the Brisbane District proposed a county-wide tax which would equalize the education for all children.

Kent nullified this plan as not being beneficial to the districts. He said this would not mean more money for the district, but a reduction in money from the state.

Proposals for a separate Laguna Salada District and for a South San Francisco-Laguna Salada district were also rejected as being "not feasible."

Dr. Kent pointed out that the unification plan would reduce the inequities in the district, while some of the trustees contended that it would reduce local control.

The Jefferson Union High School board asked what would happen to the bond debts incurred prior to unification of the districts.

The committee said that the high school indebtedness would become a liability of the new unified territory.

On the other hand, the elementary district's indebtedness would continue to be a liability of the old district's territory, unless the people of the unified district voted to include the liabilities.

Veterans Day Rites To Be Held Saturday

The Veterans Day address will be presented by the Honorable Frank B. Blum, judge of the Superior Court, San Mateo County.

Luncheon speaker is Colonel Thomas H. Barfield, commanding officer of the 6th Artillery Brigade (Air Defense). His subject: "Our Weapons of the Future."

The program begins at 10:30 a. m. with opening remarks by the master of ceremonies, Peter

J. Becker, Jr., commander of the Second District, Veterans of World War I. The Jefferson High School band, directed by Richard T. Larsen, will present a concert at 10:45 a. m.

The band will play the National Anthem and the Pledge of Allegiance will be led by Mrs. Sara Dias, president of the San Mateo County Council Auxiliary VFW, Father (Col. Chaplain) Richard W. Power, pastor of Our Lady of Mercy Catholic Church, will lead the invocation.

An address of welcome will be given by Francis J. Curry, president of the Daly City Chamber of Commerce. The luncheon will be given by T. Louis Chess, chairman of the San Mateo County board of supervisors.

Reversal In Obscene Book Case

The conviction of a Daly City cigar store owner and his wife on charges of selling obscene books was reversed last week by the Appellate Division of the San Mateo County Superior Court.

The three-judge appellate panel ruled unanimously that the defendants, Jack P. Shaver, 57, and his wife, Mae, 51, had been denied process of law during their Municipal Court trial in May, 1961.

This denial came about through the lower court's refusal to admit proffered defense evidence concerning the contemporary community standards in Daly City on questions of obscenity, the Superior court judges declared.

Shaver, whose cigar stand was located at 6264 Mission street, was fined $500 and sentenced to a 15-day jail term following his conviction on the misdemeanor charges.

His wife was also fined $500 and given a suspended 30-day jail term.

MORALS ARREST

William Bassett, 24, of 281 Sagamore street, San Francisco, was booked November 5 by Daly City police on a charge of indecent exposure in the area of Wellington and Irvington streets.

Pacifica Planners Approve Rezoning

The Pacifica city council on Monday finally reached agreement after three study sessions of property for strip commercial purposes along the proposed freeway frontage road in Sharp Park, except along Montecito and Pacific avenue. The latter two areas are already developed with homes.

The vote was 5-2 in favor of letting Joseph E. McGuigan reclassify the property. The action goes to the city council for final approval.

Trapped Hamster Returns To Class

Mrs. Snow White decided to cruise Room 9 and play the role of "hard to get." This prodigal hamster, who has been a pet of Miss Susan Shaffer's second-grade class at Vista Mar School, opened her cage door last week in the absence of students and teacher and disappeared.

Finally, custodian Walt Spencer assumed the role of a "big game trapper" and made a trap with apple as bait, attached to a pencil on a string. Eureka! Mrs. Snow White is again a member of the students in Room 9, and a delighted teacher.

Students and teacher are most grateful to Walt.

Close Call At Gas Plant

A fire which could have resulted in several nearby buildings being blown up was held in check last Friday morning at Linde Co., an acetylene gas bottling plant at 7 S. Linden avenue, South San Francisco.

Fire Chief John Marchi said if the acetylene tanks had blown up the damage would have far exceeded that of the explosion Oct. 29 at Electrocast Foundry in South San Francisco where 13 employees were injured.

The fire started from a short in a power panel in the warehouse section.

It was tough and go for a time. Firemen kept the blaze confined and waited for PG&E workmen to turn off the power as flames spread along power lines for an entire block outside the building. Electric arcs from the shorted power panel, shot back and forth inside the building.

Offices Will Close Monday; Council Will Meet Tuesday

Daly City Hall and other city offices will be closed on Monday, November 11, in observance of Veterans Day.

The city council meeting, scheduled for Monday night, will instead be held Tuesday at 8 p. m.

New Medical Building For Shopping Center

Barton Development Company, developer of the St. Francis Square Shopping Center at St. Francis Boulevard and South Gate Avenue in Daly City, today announced that a medical center providing facilities for doctors and dentists would be constructed in the western wing of their Shopping Center.

Leases are presently being negotiated with three of San Francisco's top professional men and it is understood that there will be room for three additional suites of 700 square feet each.

The medical center will be built in a "U" with a courtyard in the center containing shrubbery and comfortable benches for patients to use on sunny days while waiting. Inquiries should be addressed to the Barton Development Company, 2300 Russ Building, telephone EXbrook 7-1503.

New Car Show In Westlake

Westlake Shopping Center will present its sixth annual new car show in the mall next week, between Tuesday, November 13, and Saturday, November 17. (For details, see auto page, this section.)

Admission to the show is free. The hours will be between 10:30 a. m. and 5:30 p. m., commencing Tuesday. The shopping center is open evenings on Wednesday and Friday until 9 o'clock, and the cars may be seen at that time, too.

Models of all the major 1963 cars will be on display, so that visitors to the shopping center may easily look them over and compare features.

Beautification Of SSF Divider Strips Planned

The South San Francisco city council Monday approved a resolution for plans and specifications and authorizing for bids on beautification of divider strips on Capay, Lomitas, Elm Court, Beech, Spruce, Franklin and Maple streets.

Also approved was a resolution approving plans and specifications for the sewage treatment plant.

Healy Tibbitts Construction Company was given 30 days extension to finish work on the South San Francisco Marina.

An ordinance was adopted authorizing an exemption of hourly paid and part-time city workers from having to become members of the city retirement system.

In other action, the council approved a change in library fee cards for non-residents, raising the price from $7.50 to $10 per year.

An ordinance was introduced which would require land owners and developers situated from the city water supply to supply an adequate water supply for fire protection facilities.

Big Turnout For K. O. Polio

Tabulations were late in returning, but there were indications that the turnout for Type II K. O. Polio vaccine topped the September 23 total by several thousand.

More than 12,000 persons received vaccine November 7 at the Colma Upper School in comparison with a turnout of 9,311 on September 23.

The overall immunization in San Mateo County was 370,000, an increase of 11 to 12 per cent over September's total of 347,453.

Makeup clinics will be open Thursday from noon to 8 p. m. in four locations:

Half Moon Bay at 530 Main street; 225 West 37th avenue in San Mateo; in South San Francisco at 1024 Mission road, and 500 Arguello in Redwood City.

President Named For New Daly City Bank

John F. Varni, a veteran banker in the Bay Area for the past 35 years, was recently named president of the new First National Bank of Daly City (organizing). Daly City's first "home-owned" bank.

The new bank received its national charter last month to become the first chartered independent national bank in Daly City. It is the intention that stock of the new bank be subscribed to by individuals of Daly City and the immediate area.

The latest in banking facilities, including drive-in windows and ample parking room, Varni moved into temporary offices at 6748 Mission street to handle organizational details of setting up the bank and is accepting pledges for the subscription of stock.

Sponsoring the bank are six Daly City businessmen: Ricco Lagomarsino, member of William Lagomarsino and Company; Elton A. McGraw, pharmacist; Gerald Mincher, Gateway Chevrolet executive; Lawrence Vannucci, building materials contractor; Harry C. Curisus, public accountant.

The bank will have a capital of $1,000,000 and will represent an investment of $250,000 in facilities and will probably be the largest improvement on Mission street in Daly City in the past five years.

President First National Bank,
Daly City

This is the third new national bank in the San Francisco Bay Area for the past 37 years. Varni is a former president of an independent group of banks in the northern Bay Area. He has also been associated with statewide banking chairmanships.

Site for the new banking facility has been proposed in the Mission street-Hillside boulevard area of Daly City. Plans call for a modern building with

Civil Defense Talk Today At Rotary Luncheon

Dallas Radcliffe, deputy coordinator of San Mateo unified disaster and civil defense areas, will talk about civil defense today at a noon meeting of the Daly City Rotary Club at the Westlake Bowl.

A former faculty member of Fordham University and a retired Air Force captain, Radcliffe has seen active duty and reserve duty prior to his retirement in 1945.

For the past 14 months he worked in the California disaster office radiological defense program and previous to that was disaster control officer at Mare Island shipyards.

Early election trends last night showed George Christopher ahead of opponent Glenn M. Anderson in the race for the lieutenant governorship, 3221 to 2292, while the governor's race between Nixon and Brown was nip and tuck with Nixon at 2784 and Brown 2711 votes with 18 precincts reporting.

Incumbent Congressman J. Arthur Younger (Rep.) led Keller, 3453, in the early voting, and Senator T. H. Kuchel (Rep.) stayed ahead of his Democratic opponent, Richard Richards, by a 3-to-1 plurality.

Proposition 1-A, the $270,000,000 bond issue, 80 per cent to be used for educational purposes, received early support with a wide 3-to-1 margin of 3410 Yes and 1637 No.

(Other results are not available at press time.)

Fire Dept. Promotion For Landon Day

Landon Day, 658 Southgate avenue, Daly City, has been appointed assistant chief of the Oakland Army Terminal fire department, according to terminal fire chief Asa R. Markle, 47 Fairlawn street, Daly City. Assistant chief Day succeeds Robert MacLeod, of Oakland, who has retired from civil service.

The next meeting of the Ingleside Terrace Home Owners Association will be held Thursday, November 8, at 8 p. m. at the Aptos School playground clubhouse, it was announced by N. Harris Adee, president of the association.

TV Sets Stolen

A portable television set, valued at $70, was reported stolen from the El Camino Motel, 7525 Mission street. Katherine Koop, 875 Standish road, Pacifica, reported the theft of a portable television set and 12 bottles of liquor.

Daly City Man Knifing Victim

John Parker, 21, of 136 Flournoy street, Daly City, was seriously wounded Monday at the unemployment office in San Francisco when grabbed by a young man with a hunting knife who argued with him over a place in line.

Parker was rushed to San Francisco General Hospital after receiving stab wounds in the stomach and shoulder with the long-bladed knife.

The suspect, Albert Houston, Jr., 2, of 1885 Golden Gate avenue, San Francisco, was arrested and charged with assault with intent to kill.

Houston told police the incident started on the second floor. He said he was late for his interview and thought he should be up front. The victim told him to go to the end of the line, and when he asked again, Parker hit him, Houston said, and knocked him to the floor.

MORRIS PLAN — Arrangements for opening the Westlake office of the Morris Plan Company of California were attended by Henry Doelger

TARAVAL USED CARS

A new member has joined the ranks of Daly City's ever expanding auto row. Taraval Rambler has taken up quarters with a used car lot located at 7545 Mission Street. Mr. William "Bill" Vilas, owner of Taraval Rambler, 200 Taraval Street, San Francisco is another businessman who has faith in the economy and growth of Daly City. Vilas took over the Rambler dealership in San Francisco in November, 1959 and by operating a sound and reliable firm based on "no high pressure sales" has expanded to this second location.

Says Vilas, "We have tried to maintain a low pressure operation. I don't believe in pushing a customer into a car, but rather let them in their own due time want to buy after going over every detail about the car, financing, payment plan, insurance, etc. Then and only then, we write up the transaction. Every one of our salesmen has been schooled in this manner and can handle a deal from beginning to end without outside assistance."

The dealership employs four salesmen, each with a solid background in automobile sales. They are Dick Dragonetti, Tony Martin, Herb Nordhausen and Ory Hudson. In the Service end of the firm's operations are Kazz Takasuka, shop foreman, with the franchise since its beginning, Carl Bischoff, parts department, and service manager Ormond Hamilton. The Daly City used car operation will specialize in guaranteed used Ramblers as well as other late model used cars.

Automobiles are used by 64 per cent of employed persons in the United States to get to work, reports the National Automobile Club.

SIXTH ANNUAL WESTLAKE AUTO SHOW

Westlake Shopping Center will present its sixth annual new car show in the mall next week, between Tuesday, November 13 and Saturday, November 17.

Models of all the major 1963 cars will be on display, so that visitors to the shopping center may easily look them over and compare features.

Among the participating dealers are: The Cadillac Motor Car Division, Stonestown branch, with a showing of new Cadillacs, Chryslers and Imperials will be shown by Leo A. Jacopi, 698 El Camino Real, South San Francisco.

Gateway Chevrolet, of Daly City, will have one of the largest displays of their new line of cars, while Ford will be represented by Neville Ford of Daly City.

1963 Buicks will be shown by Carl Haas Buick Company of 6888 Mission Street, Daly City. From San Francisco, Taraval Rambler, 200 Taraval Street, will present the new line of Ramblers.

Other Daly City dealers who will be displaying cars in the Westlake Show, include Aero Motors, 7073 Mission Street, with Dodge and Dart; James E. Donahue, 6232 Mission Street, with next year's Plymouth line; Daly City Volkswagen Co., 6918 Mission will have four models of Volkswagens on display and William J. Sweeney and Sons, 6800 Mission, will offer five cars of the Studebaker line.

Oldsmobile will be represented by the C. M. Murphy Oldsmobile Company of 3950 19th Avenue, San Francisco. Arata Pontiac of 99 Linden Avenue, South San Francisco will show four cars of the 1963 Pontiac line.

Admission to the show is free. The hours will be between 10:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m., commencing Tuesday through Saturday. The Shopping Center is open evenings on Wednesday and Fridays until 9 p.m., and the cars may be seen at that time too.

Imports Push Penetration To Best Volume Point In Six Months

For the first time in six months, imported cars have pushed their share of the overall United States new-car market above five per cent.

The increase in penetration was the third in a row and came about despite a loss of volume.

Volume in August, according to imported-car figures just released by R. L. Polk & Co., amounted to 27,560, good for 5.10 per cent of the overall market.

This was a loss of 9.72 per cent from the previous month's total of 30,526, but since the setback for domestic cars was even sharper, the imports' penetration figure improved from the 4.97 per cent achieved the previous month.

The month's volume was also the lowest recorded since last February. In an apparent paradox, the imports' penetration was the highest since February.

As compared with the year-earlier month, volume was off 21.41 per cent from the 35,070 registration counted in August, 1961.

For the first eight months of the year, imports accounted for 4.94 per cent of the overall market with 227,536 registrations.

In the corresponding 1961 period, their share was 6.76 per cent on 260,265 registrations.

In a continuation of a development noted a month earlier, smaller shares of the import market went to Volkswagen and to the Top Ten makes during August.

The Top Ten, which for many months showed a steadily increasing market share, had to settle for 88.46 per cent of the August market, compared with 88.76 per cent a month earlier and a record high of 88.77 per cent in the month of February.

Volkswagen's share of import registrations was sliced to 50.65 per cent in August, compared with 55.63 per cent in July. This was VW's record share since October, 1961. VW's record share is 59.11 per cent,

1963 CHRYSLER VALIANT

THE VALIANT, Chrysler Corporation's economy compact, is fully new for 1963. It has undergone its first major styling change since its introduction in the fall of 1959. It is two inches longer and is available for the first time as a convertible. A large back window extends down to the belt line to provide superior rearward vision. Improvements include finer interiors in all models, added corrosion resistance, better ventilation at traffic speeds. Above is the V-200 4-door sedan; below, the Signet 200 two-door hardtop.

Ford, Chrysler Hike Sales, Profits For First Nine Months

Ford Motor Company was the first auto maker to report on financial results in the first nine months of this year.

The report was a good one with both sales and profits setting a record for the period.

The Chrysler Corporation's nine-month report showed a profit for the company, in contrast with a loss in the like period of last year.

The loss was turned to a profit on a rather modest increase in dollar sales. Details on the Ford and Chrysler reports will appear soon.

General Motors will report later, and the Studebaker report date has not been announced.

Since American Motors ended its fiscal year on September 30, its annual report will not be ready for another month.

established last January.

Despite the loss in volume in August from the year-earlier month, three makes in the Top Ten showed gains — Triumph, Fiat and Austin-Healey.

As compared with the previous month, the first five makes in the Top Ten were unchanged in position, ranking in this order: Volkswagen, Renault, Triumph, Volvo and Fiat.

Austin-Healey jumped to sixth from eighth, exchanging places with MG. Mercedes-Benz continued in No. 7 spot and Peugeot in No. 9.

English Ford moved into the Top Ten for the first time since June, 1961. It ousted Sunbeam.

Salton Sea Boat Races Lure Champ

Veteran race driver Ray Crawford has been pulled out of retirement to take part in the Salton City 500 National Championship boat race, November 9, 10 and 11.

Crawford, a winner of the Mexican Road Race, a qualified Indianapolis 500 driver and a former participant in Gold Cup Class competition, has entered the unlimited inboard class and is rated a good chance of picking off the first overall prize of $5,000 from the $15,000 purse.

The successful Pasadena grocer will drive an Aqua Craft, powered by a 413 cubic inch Chrysler. Sharing the driving chores with Crawford, a long time charger on both land and set, will be boat builder Skip Volk of Baldwin Park.

Grand Opening At Auto-Torium

A four-day celebration, beginning at noon today and climaxed by a display of antique autos on November 10, from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m., will herald the grand opening in Westlake of the Auto-Torium, sixth and largest auto accessory store in the Bay Area.

The new store at 58 Southgate avenue is located next to the Westlake Bowl and soon to be constructed Macy's in the Westlake Shopping Center. It will be the first Auto-Torium store to be opened in San Mateo County.

Ownes Sid and Lois Patan said the store will feature more than 13,000 square feet of store space, parking and installation service area, where tires, seat belts and seat covers can be installed.

Present at the grand opening are to be civic and business leaders from the Westlake area, along with representatives of the National Safety Council.

Managing the new store will be Robert Borbeck, assisted by Jim Curran.

Patan said "a heavy slate of super-values, and array of specially priced merchandise items," will be offered at the grand opening week.

In 1902, 16 battleships and 12,000 men made the first round-the-world cruise of the United States fleet.

Buyer Is A 'Moving Target'

The auto industry's sales target—the American car buyer—is a "moving target," Lee A. Iacocca, Ford Division general manager, told the National Fleet Owners Conference meeting in Detroit.

This means that auto manufacturers must keep moving also if they are to stay on target, he said, and this is the reason for the skyrocketing variety of models being offered the public.

As an example, Iacocca said that ten years ago, the industry was predicting that a million station wagons would be in use by 1961. Instead, eight million were in use.

This 700 per cent margin of error, he said, proves his point that the industry is aiming at a moving target.

Another indication of the rapidly changing public tastes in automobiles, he said, was an incident which occurred last year when Ford Division was making a presentation to the Product Planning Committee on one of its 1963 models.

"Just ahead of us on the agenda was an official from Ford of England," Iacocca said. "He was asking permission to install bench seats in place of bucket seats and to move the shift lever from the floor to the steering column on one of his new models. He said he wanted to do these things for the convenience of the customer."

"What he didn't know was that I was coming up next and I was asking approval on installing bucket seats in place of bench seats and moving the shift lever from the column to the floor."

Why the public demand for such a variety of cars? Iacocca said it is basically that Americans don't want to look exactly like their neighbors.

But another big factor is the growth in two-car families, from two million in 1959 to almost nine million this year. He said Ford estimates a growth to nearly 12 million by 1965, and that more than a million families now have three or more cars.

"Have you ever seen two blue, straight-stick four-door sedans in any family garage? Of course not. A wagon and a convertible, yes. A sedan and a compact convertible, yes. But never two just-alikes."

Iacocca said he recently told a meeting of production people that the division could produce 1.5 million cars in a year without making the same car twice. Said one frustrated production manager: "At the rate we are going, we're about to do just that."

Studebaker Develops Anti-Smog Device

Studebaker developed a special combination crankcase ventilating system for the Avanti engine because of the supercharger that's frequently used on this engine. However, the same ventilator is employed on un-supercharged cars with the Avanti engine. The AC-type ventilator is used on all other Studebakers.

The crankcase is ventilated by air entering through the oil filler cap on the rocker arm cover and flowing out through an adapter tube in the oil pan and into the air cleaner.

The oil filler caps have metered holes to allow a controlled amount of fresh air to circulate through the crankcase.

At higher engine speeds the main flow of air is carried from the crankcase through the hose to the air cleaner. But, at idle and slow speeds, the air flow is through a small hose running from the main hose to a check valve at the base of the carburetor.

The check valve permits air to enter the manifold when the manifold is not pressurized by the supercharger. When the manifold becomes pressurized, the check valve seats and keeps blowby from returning to the crankcase.

Women's Influence—1926 . . .

IDEAS FROM THE PAST

"Cherchez la femme," the phrase made famous by the French police, was successfully applied to automobile salesmanship in Minneapolis in 1926.

"Look for the woman," was the advice given to salesmen by Chevrolet's northwest distributor in a statement on woman's influence on the sale of a car.

"When the industry was young, all selling efforts were directed at the man of the house, because it was necessary to convince him that a 'horseless buggy' would actually function," the distributor declared.

"But today, conditions have changed and the mysteries of the car are no longer a bugaboo."

The firm said a successful salesman agreed that in at least 90 per cent of sales the woman's influence was the determining factor.

"When approaching a man of the family to sell him a car, we urge every salesman to make it a rule also to canvass the woman of the house and learn what she desires as to model, style and finish of the car," the distributor advised.

Hertz To Purchase 30,000 1963 Models

Hertz Corporation plans a record purchase of 30,000 new 1963 cars and trucks valued "in excess of 105 million dollars," according to Leon C. Greengard, corporation chairman.

He told the Security Analysis of San Francisco that "we for one have no lack of confidence in the economic outlook for next year."

Redwoods grow in an area of the Pacific coastal region extending from 125 miles south of San Francisco to the southwest corner of Oregon.

1930-40 Jeff Grads To Hold Reunion

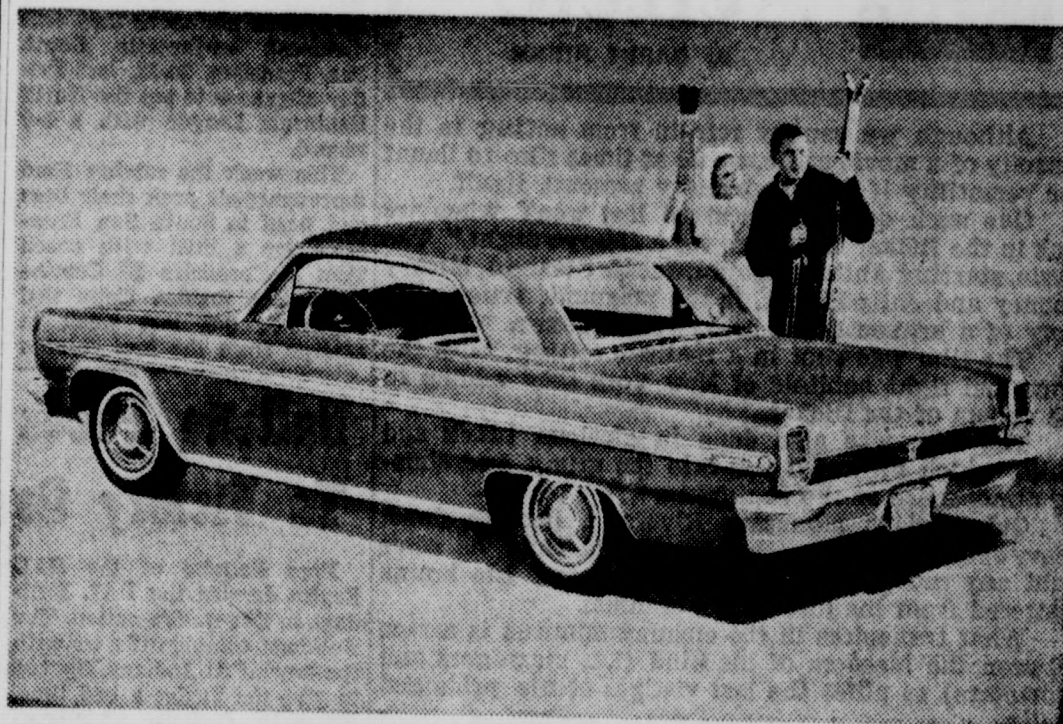

A gala school reunion is scheduled for Jefferson Union High School, Friday, November 30, at 8 p.m.

The event will be held in the Crystal Ballroom of the Marines' Memorial Club, 609 Sutter street, San Francisco.

Students who attended from the years 1930 to 1940 are included, and anyone from prior classes will be welcomed.

Dancing will be to the music of Al Wallace, with tickets available at the door. For additional information, call BA 1-9946. Tickets are $2 each.

1963 OLDSMOBILE JETFIRE

THE 1963 JETFIRE, along with all other Oldsmobile F-85 models, has been designed as a more impressive-looking car, with more the look of an Oldsmobile. Crisply and youthfully styled, the Jetfire has its own identifying tailored aluminum band along the sides. Bucket seats and center console are standard equipment. The Jetfire combines the advantages of power when it is needed and economy when it is wanted. Its exclusive aluminum Turbo-Rocket engine maintains the high efficiency of turbo-charging with ultra-high compression.

Although we usually refrain from acting in the capacity of a movie critic, we do at times like to flaunt our versatility if the opportunity presents itself.

One such occasion occurred last week when we took in the flicker "Requiem for a Heavyweight." The movie, starring Anthony Quinn, Jackie Gleason, Mickey Rooney and Julie Harris, is the poignant, true-to-life story of a broken down heavyweight boxer.

The film was shot in a realistic setting, with the gyms and fight habitats of New York City adding to the verism of the flicker.

The film was also done in glorious black and white, which projected you into the grimy and sinister atmosphere at the beginning.

Quinn plays Mountain Rivera, a broken down heavyweight of 17 years who is told that he can't fight any more. His education is nil and his brains scattered from his toes to his cranium.

What transpires in the ensuing minutes is a race between the bleeders of his kind (i.e., managers and promoters) to pilfer the last vestiges of his pride and sanity.

On the other side, representing the good, is a woman (there always is), Julie Harris, who tries to salvage his pride and land him a respectable job.

We won't ruin it for you and tell you who wins between the age-old enemies of good and evil, but it has a somewhat abrupt and surprising ending.

The acting, for the most part, is superb. Quinn whose make-up man should get an Academy Award, fits the role perfectly. He swaggers and talks the lingo of the fight world. His slurring, deep nasal utterings are reminiscent of the speech enacted by the lost souls of the fistic world. In all, Quinn gives a very strong performance.

Gleason, as usual, is excellent. The fat, mustachioed fight manager whose hook-up with the underworld has perverted his sense of humanity, is the typical leech. The unfortunate thing is that this character is all too prevalent in the actual fight world today.

Rooney, portraying Mountain's chief second, is a little weak in spots. Perhaps it is not his fault. The character created seems somewhat unrealistic in that he has been putting up with the boxing game for 17 years and all of a sudden sees that it is rotten.

Miss Harris plays a good even part. She plays the role of an interviewer at the unemployment office who seems to have an underlying idolatry towards boxers. She is the first clean and normal thing ever to enter the life of Mountain Rivera and his ebbing morality and pride are given a pick-up.

The photography in the picture is excellent, and to make the film even more realistic, the producers have boxers Paulo Rossi, Willie Pep, Rory Calhoun, Alex Miteff, Loquacious Cassius Clay, Barney Ross and Jack Dempsey make occasional appearances.

If you like boxing, or even if you don't, but like to see how the other half lives and see a good movie at the same time, we suggest that you take in "Requiem For A Heavyweight."

ON THE SIDELINES.....Robert Carmichel, 380 1/2 San Diego Street, Daly City, walked out of the Mt. Zion Hospital last Friday and was met with a deluge of flash bulbs, and movie and TV cameras.

Carmichel knew that the people of Daly City missed him, but he didn't know it was that much. Carmichel turned to the fellow walking out next to him to see if he knew what was happening.

"What is this all about?" he asked.

"I don't know," said Willie Mays.

It looks like the Green Bay Packers will register the first undefeated football season in Pro grid history.

Former South SF High School star Clyde Conner dropped into SSF's John's Men Shop last week and gave the lowdown on the Packers to owners Jack Suza and George Chimenti.

Conner told the duo that the Green Bay line is the most fierce in grid history. According to the 49er end the Packer line is trained as a single unit—not as individuals. And that is the way they play or else they are on the bench. Like one big human machine.

Jimmy Dombroski, former all around sportster from South SF high, is currently a freshman at Willamette University in Oregon. Dombroski, though ineligible for football his first semester, will trek to Hawaii later this month with the varsity squad.

Westmoor Stretches Legs For NPL Title

The galloping Westmoor Rams have passed the half-mile pole and are drawing clear as they head around the turn and ready for the stretch run.

Coach Pete Matisi's Rams, the odds-on favorites at the start of the season, lived up to their notices as they out-distanced co-favorite South San Francisco, 20-13, last Friday afternoon to top the North Peninsula League with a 3-0 record.

This week the mighty Ram thoroughbreds pack their bags and head to South San Francisco for a duel with coach Tom McCormick's El Camino Colts. The maiden Colts tied Jefferson, 6-6, last week to emerge from the loss column for the first time this year.

The contest is scheduled for 2:45 p.m. on the South SF High School field.

The Ram win last week left only Camino and the surprising Terra Nova Tigers in their way. If the Rams get by El Camino, and they are expected to, the Tigers will be the only team with a chance of knocking them off and grabbing the title—provided Terra Nova gets by South SF Friday night.

If the Tigers lose and the Rams win, Westmoor will have clinched at least a tie for the NPL crown.

El Camino will have to have their defensive secondary in top shape if they expect to upset the Rams. Westmoor quarterback Bruce Hix has been razor sharp with his passing of late. In the last two games, the junior signal caller has rolled up a fantastic total of 449 yards via the air currents.

The stocky junior, and 1961 All-PL baseball player, is one of the finest quarterbacks in Northern California and one of the best on the Peninsula since Jefferson's Paul Tapia and Capuchino's Gene Tagliafari in 1957.

In last Friday afternoon's contest, Matisi was elated over the stern defense and the masterful passing of Hix.

Matisi cited sophomore line-backer Ron Baker, and big tackle Tony Thomas as leading the way for the defense. Hix, along with receivers Steve Schmuck and Mike DeBernardi, also gained praise from the Ram coach.

The game was a cliff-hanger, with Hix engineering the green and white gridders 88 yards in the final three minutes for the go-ahead score. With the score tied, 13-13, the Rams took over on the 12-yard line and Hix promptly fired a pass to Schmuck which traversed 50 yards. The Rams got another 15 when the Warriors were called for mask-grabbing.

With third down and nine on the SSF 14-yard line, Hix hurled a bullet down the barrel to Schmuck, who leaped between two defenders for the catch in the end zone.

Hix ran the PAT over unmolested for the 20-13 lead.

The Warriors came driving back but ran out of time on the Ram 32-yard line.

Earlier in the same period, slender Warrior halfback Bobby Szezhner, on a fourth down and 10 situation, romped 80 yards for a touchdown. Fullback Steve Balopoulos bulldozed the point over to throw the game into a 13-13 tie.

The Rams marched 65 yards in the first period, with Hix running the ball in from the four-yard line. Fullback Bill Mahoney lugged the PAT in to give the green and white gridders a 7-6 lead.

They scored again at the outset of the third period, this time with DeBernardi running it in from the four-yard line.

South SF scored first on a long 82-yard sprint by halfback Jim Shutz.

Hix hit on 13 of 23 passes for 197 yards. Schmuck was his leading receiver, grabbing four aerials for 109 yards. DeBernardi also caught four passes for 37 yards. Tito Torres and Marc Mallinger each caught two passes.

Mahoney was the top Ram ball carrier of the day, rushing for 80 yards in nine carries for an 8.8 average.

Shutz and Szezhner paced the South SF running attack. Shutz had 124 yards in 15 carries for an 8.2 average, while Szezhner sped for 120 yards in nine carries for a scintillating 13.3 average per carry.

Steve Shoff Paces PAL Tigers To 12-6 Victory

The PAL Rams overpowered Perry Perrone and his PAL Bears, 30-12, in the eighth grade Recreation Football League.

The Ram scoring started with a Perrone aerial picked off by Monty Consani, who went 20 yards for the first TD. Ken Smith and Joe Weinburg alternated throwing the ball to Matty De Bernardi, who scored twice on passes, and Bob Rogant, who also scored. Monty Consani added six more with a fine reception.

The Bears' scoring centered around Barry Perrone. Perrone carried a 30 yard TD and hit Phil Cherperallra for a second 0 touchdown.

Bruce Brinkerhoff and Paul Pucci both crossed the goal line for the PAL Panthers in their game against the Holy Angels.

Falcons. It looked like another loss for the winless Falcons but they came back and scored twice to tie the Panthers, 12-12.

The PAL Tigers showed off their front power this week in edging out the PAL 49ers, 12-6. Mario Blandini's 55-yard touchdown pass to Jerry Neary was matched by the 49ers' Rex Arnot to Dave Erdman 20-yard TD pass.

At this point, Mike Wynne, Jeff Mietz and Steve Shoff put the pressure on the 49ers.

The winning score came when Tigers' Joe Farrell lofted a 40-yard pass to Steve Shoff, the latter making a tremendous one-hand catch for the winning touchdown.

Mrs. Adam Proctor emerged the victor in the Cypress Hills ladies' golf club match versus Par tourney with a one-up triumph. Mrs. Harry Rasmussen was second, finishing the sprawling layout two-down.

In the Class B division, Mrs. J. E. Stauffer finished even for top honors, while Mrs. Donald Mix was close behind with a one-down tally.

Mrs. Raymond Coyne grabbed the top honors in the Class C division with a one-down victory. Mrs. S. K. Stranger was second with a three-down final.

In the medal play tourney, Mrs. L. Petersen and Mrs. D. Leone tied for first with net 69s. Mrs. Doraux was second with a net 72.

Balletto Paces PAL Eagles To Victory Over Bulldogs

Fred Balletto of the PAL Eagles dazzled the PAL Bulldogs in this week's action. The Bulldogs, coming off a tie with the OLP Hornets, figured to give the Eagles a bad time.

However, Balletto and company pounded out a 58-6 victory over the Bulldogs.

Balletto carried the pickin for four TDs and one PAT via the ground, and went to the air for two more TDs for a total of six. While Balletto's achievements overshadowed his other team members' feats, notice must be given to Butch Bonavito, who was on the receiving end of Balletto's two aerial bombs.

Larry Belfrage also contributed a touchdown for his team along with two PATs.

Russ Frederico and Pat Cassidy also contributed scores for the victors.

Tom Visile opened the Holy Angels Lions game with the OLP Hornets with a real bang as he went 93 yards for a TD on the opening kickoff. The game proceeded to be a real tough battle for both teams. OLP Hornets' Bob Estrada evened the score at 6-6 with a 12-yard run for a TD.

Tom Visile then hit Tom Delsardo with a 20-yard bomb in the last minute and a half of the game to give the Lions a 12-6 victory.

Coach Joe McGrath is sending his search party over to the coastline hamlet of Sharp Park this week in hope of finding that big thing called "Victory."

The Jefferson Indians take on the Oceana Sharks in quest of their first league win Friday at Oceana. Kick-off time is 2:45 p.m.

If the Jeffs thin that they will have an easy search, they have another guess coming. The Sharks are also winless and are quite tired of taing the back seat.

The Indians got out of the loss column for the first time last week when they came battling back to tie the El Camino Colts, 6-6. Oceana had another frustrating day as they bowed to crosstown rival Terra Nova, 28-0.

Although the Indians beat the Sharks, 39-13, earlier in the season in a practice tilt, the Oceana eleven has improved since then.

Jefferson will be counting heavily on hard driving backs Ed Nathan and Leo Gotelli. Nathan scrambled for 43 yards in six carries against El Camino last week for a 7.1 average per carry. Gotelli lugged the ball five times for 32 yards and a 6.3 average. Nathan also hit on three out of five passes for 67 yards.

Indian end Rich Waller, a nominee for all NPL honors, grabbed in three Indian passes for 67 yards.

The Indians came from behind in the third period to tie up the contest. After Camino's Walt Harris had intercepted a pass and sped 50 yards, the Indians took off on a march which ended in the Colt end zone when Archie Cordova plunged in from the one-yard line.

In last week's loss to Terra Nova, the Sharks' main ball carriers were Bob MacDonald and Tom Summy. MacDonald garnered 21 yards in 14 carries while Summy was grinding out 13 yards in two carries. The latter also caught two passes for 40 yards.

Jeff's main threat will be Shark quarterback Steve McCaughey, who has developed into a good passer. The Oceana signal-caller pierced the Tiger defense with five completions out of ten attempts and rolled up a respectable 52 yards in the air last week.

Rec Football Contest For Daly City Youths

This Saturday morning, November 10, children from all playgrounds in Daly City will compete in the department of recreation's Football Feature Contest. For several weeks, local children have practiced and entered run-offs at local playgrounds to determine who would represent their playground in the various age groups. A champion will be determined for the Western and Eastern sides of the city.

All recreation facilities east of Junipero Serra will send representatives in the nine-and-under, 12-and-under, and 14-and-under groups to Marchbanks Park at 10 a. m., Saturday, November 10, for the run-off of the Eastern championship. George Grant of Woodrow Wilson School playground will be in charge of the run-off.

Representatives from the recreational facilities west of Junipero Serra will compete at Westlake Park at 10 a. m. for the Western championship. Terry Fischer, all-conference end from City College of San Francisco, will be in charge at Westlake Park. There will be competition in passing for accuracy, and passing, kicking and punting for distance. Winners will be awarded championship ribbons.

The directors of the Half Moon Bay Drag Strip have announced today that the events on Sunday, November 11, will be highlighted by the Champion Speed Shop Special from South San Francisco.

Sammy Hale, driving the Champion car, will put his No. 2 National Mr. Eliminator title on the line against top contenders. Hale attains the spectacular speed of 182 mph in 8.20 seconds.

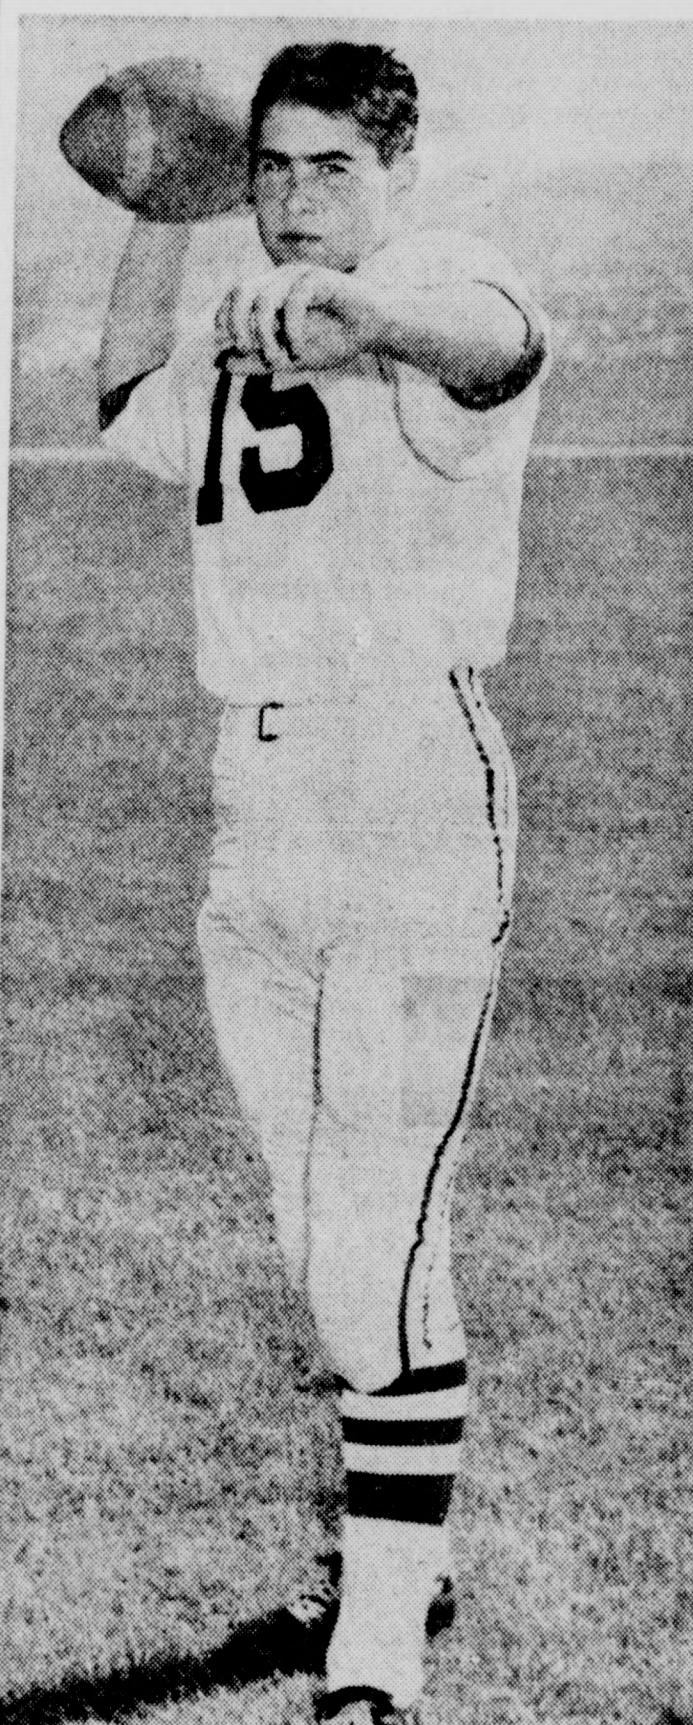

Also included in the car and driver line-up are: Roger Harrington from San Leandro, with super-charged Oldsmobile; Gateway Chevrolet, Daly City, super-charged Chevrolet; Paul Potter, South San Francisco, super-charged Chrysler; Julian Bros., also a super-charged Chrysler, and many, many more top Bay Area dragsters. All of the above-mentioned dragsters turn speeds consistently of 170 mph and should give the Champion Speed Shop car good competition for his title.

As usual, gates open at 8:30 a.m., eliminations at 2 p.m. There will also be a full schedule of stock and super-stock entries. This event is sanctioned by the National Hot Rod Association.

Free parking, grandstands and food and beverages are available. Children under 12 years are allowed to attend free of charge.

The Half Moon Bay Drag Strip is located 26 miles south of San Francisco on Coast Highway No. 1.

WESTMOOR quarterback Bruce Hix will lead the Rams against El Camino this Friday at South San Francisco.

Westmoor Class C Cagers North Peninsula Champs!

Coach Tony Giamonna's 120-pound cagers today reign as the North Peninsula League champs. The spirited Class C cagers raced to a 47-33 decision over the South San Francisco Warriors last Thursday to capture the first crown yielded by the new North Peninsula League.

The Ram cagers were paced by John Putnam, Joaquin Andrade and Jim Fair, who scored 15, 14 and eight points, respectively. Steve Zarate and Tom Parker paced the victors on defense.

The green and white basketballers broke the game wide open early in the contest with the fast break. They jumped out to a 25-7 lead in the second quarter and were never threatened.

In the Class D event, the Ram cagers captured second place in the NPL with a 27-21 win over South SF.

Roger Foss and Ken Liss each tallied eight points to pace the locals.

Earlier in the week the Rams exploded for 13 straight points to turn an otherwise close game into a rout, as they beat Jefferson, 43-23.

Jim Fair and Joaquin Andrade combined for 26 points in the win.

Although the Indians kept it close through three periods, they never led in the game and were tied up only once. First quarter saw the Rams go into an 11-6 lead. The Indians came back to cut the Rams' margin to one at 12-13, but Steve Zarate hit two charities and Putnam a filder to push the half-time score to 17-12.

Zarate scored on a layup just before the end of the third period to start the Rams on a scoring binge of 15 straight points. Jeff did not get on the scoreboard in the fourth period until the final 15 seconds.

The 110s were not nearly so fortunate, as they lost a tight defensive battle to the Indians, 23-16. Rams closed the margin to 16-20 with 2:32 remaining in the game, but coach Mike Orlich's cagers went into a freeze and cashed in on free tosses to wrap up the game.

Tigers Challenge SSF In Crucial

If somebody had said at the start of the grid season that Terra Nova would be entering the final two weeks of the North Peninsula League in first place, they would have been labeled crazy and probably packed off to the looney-bin.

But here it is November 7 and Coach Floyd Gonella's boys are sharing the top perch with Westmoor with a 3-0 record. The meteoric rise of the Tigers has left many coaches and players shaking their heads.

Last Friday, the Tigers went down the road to blast their crosstown cousins, Oceana, 28-0.

This Friday, the Tigers get real brave and cross the mountain into South San Francisco for a duel with the SSF Warriors.

The game will be played at 8 p.m. under the arcs at Clifford Field. The Warriors will be hungry for the victory, having lost to Westmoor last Friday, 20-13, in the finest ball game witnessed in the NPL this year.

The Tigers are paced by quarterback Manuel Pick, fullback Fred Mason and halfback Dennis Caruthers.

Pick hit on four out of five passes last week for 40 yards before being removed to let the subs play.

Mason, a 205-pound power runner, ground out 92 yards in seven carries for a 13.1 yard per carry average. Caruthers also averaged in double figures as he packed six times for 67 yards and an 11.1 average.

Reserve quarterback Mike Blagrove also made some bright sparks, hitting four out of six passes for 70 yards.

The Tigers' main task will be to stop the running of the Warriors' Bobby Szezhner and Jim Shutz. Szezhner sped for 120 yards and Shutz for 124 yards against Westmoor last week. The speedy duo both ripped off runs in excess of 80 yards.

Quarterback Rich Wickersham also presents a danger to the Tiger defenders. The double-threat signal-caller hit on five out of seven passes against Westmoor last week.

In last week's Tiger-Oceana contest, Mason performed the first half heroics as he scored twice in succession, on five and 29 yard runs, respectively.

Defensive guard Russ Whalen added six more when he alertedly pounced on a Shark fumble in the end zone. Halfback John Cook scored the final TD when he grabbed a 22-yard pass from Blagrove.

Oakland's new American Basketball League team opens soon with pro talent that goes from spectacular to ridiculous. The Oaks won two dandies in obtaining Oakland cage hero Jim Hadnot from Providence U. and former USF and St. Louis Hawks cager Fred LaCour. But on the other hand, the East Bay ABL entry didn't get quality pro material when they signed Nick Romanoff, who played as a reserve center for the San Francisco Olympic Club.

Popular Hal DeJulio of Oakland, the discoverer of the magnificent Bill Russell and USF's top basketball recruiter, has started a corporation whose purpose is to invest professional athletes' money into conservative ventures. It's called "Athletes, Inc." Hal, a sharp cookie who played for the '49 Cinderella Dons, has found great success in the insurance and finance fields. San Francisco has had Wilt (the Stilt) Chamberlain just a few weeks, but already the city is learning that the Warrior ace is nearly as spectacular on the dance floor as he is on the hardwood. Anyone would wilt if they saw Stilt do the twist. The Washington Redskins are an Eastern Division contender in the National Football League. The 'Skins came from the cellar to championship contention largely because Preston Marshall finally tore the barrier down and permitted Negroes to play on the teams this season. The Washington owner will never regret it, because the Redskins' first Negro, Bobby Mitchell has been a sensation game in, game out.

Bob Berry, Jr., star quarterback for the University of Oregon is the son of Willow Glen High coach Bob Berry, Sr. The last time I looked, Willow Glen had won 40 in a row. The streak started when young Bob QB'd for the Rams from San Jose. . . . Pete Middlekauff, halfback on the Stanford frosh, was named to the Pop Warner League All-American team in '57.

Little Big Games between St. Mary's and Santa Clara may be gone forever, but something close to it could develop between the "new age" Broncos and San Francisco State. Their game was rained out, October 14, and the contest was re-scheduled for Thanksgiving Day. The first annual clash between the schools has stirred up Santa Clara alums and State is also beginning to feel the pulse of a rivalry. You can bet that a capacity crowd will attend the Turkey Day clash.

The 49ers and the Giants are being assembled for a basketball game which will be played as a preliminary before a Warrior contest some time in December or January. Some of the Giants will come into the game in good shape for court action, because several play on the "Major League All-Stars," who perform at various sports functions. . . . Joe DiMaggio was overheard at the Fuller-Tiger fight telling an admirer: "You won't find me away from The City very often. I'm home now, and I want to spend most of my time with my old friends."

Gus Suhr (822 consecutive games with the Pirates) is now associated with Lucky Stores in San Francisco. The all-time Bay Area baseball star spent his vacation in New York in early October. Gus and his wife, Mary, got ducats for the World Series in Gotham, but they ended up being a part of the wet ones on that very rainy day at Yankee Stadium, when the Series was postponed.

Vikings, Colts Grab Victories

Tom Belvin kept the PAL Vikings on top in the sixth grade league as he scored the only TD in a hard defensive battle to spark the Vikings to an 8-0 win over the PAL Foresters.

Belvin scored on an end sweep. The Foresters gave up two more points when a bad snap from center gave a safety to the Vikings.

The Holy Angels Colts jumped up this week by halting the OLPH Twisters, 14-8, in a close one. Jimmy Graham started off the Colts' scoring by hitting Ed Visile for a TD. Tom Leary countered for OLPH with a TD, going right up the middle.

Doug Homberg caught a Colt runner behind the goal line, making the score 8 to 7.

Graham then hit Visile for a 25-yard TD pass to give the Colts the victory.

Garber, Ghilarducci Pace Flag Football

Eighth graders Scott Ghilarducci and Dave Reed captained opposing teams in last Saturday's flag football game, with Ghilarducci's team winning by a score of 13 to 0.

Both teams were scoreless during the first half, but at the end of the third quarter, Ghilarducci threw a touchdown pass to George Garber in the end zone for a 6-0 lead. The conversion failed.

In the fourth quarter, they reversed the touchdown procedure with Garber throwing a pass to Ghilarducci on a 30-yard pass play for the game's final touchdown. Again Garber found Ghilarducci in the end zone for the conversion.

Local Archers Win Awards In Tourney

Local archers won first and second place in the annual teenage tournament held in San Bruno with the San Francisco Club.

Winners were Pete Forcini, first prize trophy, with 142 points; Roberta Peterson, second prize, with 106 points, and Caddy Barrett, third prize.

Thus the perpetual trophy was won the second year by the Sons and Daughters of the Apollo Bowman.

The annual gathering of Robin Hooders, Lady Marions and the Teen Age Archery group will be November 17 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

All these groups are resuming practice at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Druhn of 413 Alta Vista drive in South San Francisco.

Colma Meets Alta Loma Footballers

Colma got revenge last week when they hosted Benjamin Franklin and defeated them, 21-2 in the Touch Football League.

They reversed an earlier, 28-0 loss when Benjamin Franklin was on the winning end.

Colma now leads the league with a 2-1 record. Ben Franklin and Alta Loma are tied for second place, and Brisbane is in last place with three losses. They lost their third game last Wednesday when Alta Loma beat them, 28-0.

Today, Benjamin Franklin hosts Brisbane, and Colma travels to Alta Loma for a game which could decide the league championship.

From A Feminine Viewpoint...

By Mona Baker

From elegant fur trimmed coats to glittering holiday evening costumes were the fashions at last week's YWCA "Thursday Girl" fashion-luncheon show at Westlake Bowl. Bright holiday red in a smart wool two-piece suit worn by Mrs. Alyce Madsen. A charming mother-daughter combination were Peggy and Sandy Miller. Peggy wore a black wool coat with bleached white mink collar and little Sandy was in a classic coat with brown velvet trim. Teddy Erwin dramatic in leopard coat topped a black sheathe. Show stoppers Susan Straight and Tom Orlich in bright red blazers. Two chic knit ensembles modeled by Norma Washford and Mardy Conrad. Brother and sister Cheryl Ann and Barry Nelson adorable in navy. In high fashion fall shade of gold were Ann and daughter Cindy Lou Johnson. A dramatic theater suit of exotic black modeled by Ginger Straight. Three outstanding cocktail fashions, Muriel Wyman in sparkling gold design imported organza, Dorothy Orlich striking in cerise and Nancy Warne lovely in draped turquoise party gown.

Dedicated and gracious is our community leader this week who has won the hearts of all who have come in contact with her.

She is particularly interested in the welfare of young people and since her graduation from the University of California in the spring with a M.A. degree in social work has devoted her time to delinquent girls and needy children.

A couple of months ago she stepped in as director of North San Mateo County YWCA and has been carrying on with flying colors ever since. Her enthusiasm, interest and quiet leadership has been an inspiration to everyone. Under her direction during the coming year more than 5000 preschoolers, teenagers and adults will participate in the Y program. She plans to expand the program to Pacifica when the Linda Mar Community Center is completed.

We salute Pat Martinez, our community leader of the week! The Martinez family, husband Michael and children, Sam and Miceli, live at 59 Longview Drive in Westlake Terrace.

A hearty "welcome to America" will be extended tomorrow (Nov. 8) by citizens of the community when they attend a tea hosted by the local chapter of American Field Service honoring their exchange student Helen Frisell from Sweden.

Among specially invited guests is Mrs. Per Anger, wife of the Consulate General of Sweden.

The reception will be held from 3 to 5 o'clock at the Westmoor Clubhouse, 123 Edgemont Street. Decorations are being arranged by Mrs. Elnora Collins and students from Westmoor's American Field Service Club will pour.

Interest in antiques? You can browse to your heart's content if you attend the sixth annual Antiques Show and Sale to be held in Julia Bayford Hall, St. Matthew Episcopal Church, El Camino Real and Baldwin Avenues, Nov. 6, 7, 8 from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Featuring a collection of antiques from Burlingame-Hillsborough-San Mateo area, the show is sponsored by the League for Service. Mrs. Ellsworth Clippely is chairman and tickets may be purchased at the door.

SOCIAL WHIRL: A dessert coffee is scheduled by the Immaculate Conception Elementary Mothers' Guild for Nov. 13 from 1 to 3 p.m. at the school auditorium, 1550 Treat Avenue, San Francisco. Mrs. Walter Cook is chairman. Reservations are not required and proceeds will be used to purchase a piano for the Sisters Convent.

An important social event in Pacifica is the coming Pacifica Federated Women's Club fashion show planned for Nov. 11. Mrs. Daniel Uriarte is general chairman.

A busy day is planned by the Pacifica 50 Plus Club on November 15. They will first attend the "Tennessee Ernie Ford" show at KGO-TV studios. Lunch is planned at the Towne House where they will be joined by members of the Senior Citizens Group of Westlake, and then on to Cinerama.

FASHION NEWS: The most elegant ever are the glittering metallic party gowns for the coming holiday season—gold, silver, copper, gold and silver combinations. If your budget simply won't stretch for a new party gown why not whip up a stole out of the shimmering new fabrics to wear with your favorite party dress.

NEWS BRIEFS: Scheduled for November 12 at the next meeting of the Pacifica Art Guild is a demonstration of palette knife technique by Pacifica artist Charles Knauf. The board of directors held a meeting last week at the home of Mrs. Rodney Clark.

Peggy Miller is chairman of the "Christmas Fashions on the Lanes" to be held on December 6 at the Westlake Bowl.

Christened recently at Holy Angels Church was Victor Joseph Guerrero, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Guerrero Jr., 1399 Southgate Avenue. His aunt, Mrs. Vincent J. Cauchi was godmother, and his uncle, Edward Guerrero was godfather. A family buffet dinner followed the ceremony.

There are openings for qualified mothers who wish to exchange babysitting in the Winston Manor babysitting club. Telephone Carol Smith (WY 2-2019) or Beverlee Bickert (WY 2-2592) for more information.

Weekending in Reno with the Peninsula Branch of the Non-Partisans were Ann and Lewis Johnson of Westlake.

Thanks again for your letters and cards. Do let us know about your coming activities for the holidays. Don't worry about writing it out, just list the facts. Send to Feminine Viewpoint, Day-Lake Publications, 3317 San Jose Avenue, Daly City.

Development Assn. Honors New Produce Terminal November 20

Business and community leaders from throughout the Bay Area will gather at the Hilton Inn on Tuesday, November 20, when the San Mateo County Development Association will officially honor the opening of the new Golden Gate Produce Terminal, scheduled to begin operations at its South San Francisco location on November 26.

The new $4,500,000 center will share honors that evening with the official recognition of Farm-City Week in San Mateo County, part of the National Farm-City program to be observed November 16-22.

Coming to San Mateo County to speak at this dinner is Alan T. Rains, executive vice president of the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association, one of the nation's outstanding leaders in the produce field.

Moving from their San Francisco location to make way for the Golden Gateway Redevelopment project, those produce dealers who belong to the terminal organization include Berti Fruit and Produce Company, Best Fruit and Produce Company, Brice Brothers, Inc., Elite Produce Company, Half Moon Fruit and Produce Company, Lee Ray-Tarantino Produce Company, A. Levy and J. Zentner Company, Walter Papazian Company, Passantino Produce Company, Pipa Produce Company, Scatena Galli Fruit Company and Sunset Produce Company.

Joseph Carcione of Best Fruit and Produce Company, president of the Golden Gate Produce Terminal, estimated that the project should stimulate 75 million dollars gross annual business. Nearly 1,000 persons are expected to be employed in the various operations within the 16-acre site, located west of Bayshore Freeway, one mile north of San Francisco International Airport.

There will be approximately 70 stalls in the entire area and more than a dozen satellite businesses have already signed leases within the center. These include bank facilities, restaurant, refrigeration firm, barber shop, truck and auto service facilities and administrative offices.

One of the unique features of the new addition to San Mateo County is that the terminal is owned solely by the produce dealers themselves, not by a public agency as in the case of most major terminals.

The real estate transactions bringing the project to South San Francisco were handled by association member Louis Polletti, South San Francisco realtor, and Primo Repetto of the Repetto Real Estate Company in San Francisco.

Father-Son Night AT Bayshore PTA

"Fathers Are Parents, Too." That is what was stressed in every membership campaign ever conducted. The month of November is dedicated to the fathers in the Bayshore PTA.

The meeting will be held on Wednesday, November 14, at 8 p. m. in the Bayshore School Auditorium and will be "Father and Son" night. A very impressive and interesting program has been planned by program chairman Mrs. Wayne Liebert with assistance of her husband.

A film on scouting will be shown and a skit which will be presented by fathers.

The PTA president, Mrs. Fred Pajkos, urges all parents to make an effort to attend this program as it should prove quite interesting and informative.

The faculty of Bayshore, Midway and Robertson schools will be the hostesses for this night affair.

Coshlan, Westlake PTA president, announces that nursery care will be provided.

Fernando Rivera PTA 'Hawaiian Holiday'

The Fernando Rivera School PTA is having a "Hawaiian Holiday" Festival Friday evening, November 9, from 6 to 10 p. m.

There will be games. If you are pretty accurate at throwing a ball or can toss a ring over the neck of a soft drink bottle, you may win a prize. For the not-so-accurate there is a small consolation prize.

The PTA is decorating the school area to resemble the Hawaiian Islands.

For the early-bird Christmas shopper, there will be novelties for sale. They have Civil War hats for the small fry, stuffed animals, dolls, ceramics, diaries, puppets, leis, stuffed Santas, and bird-nest hats. These are all brand-new merchandise.

And don't forget to stop at the stand where they are selling school pennants. The students will want one to hang in their rooms.

Then for snack time there will be soft drinks, popcorn, cake and coffee for sale.

Ruth Cornelius 25 Years At Macy's

Ruth A. Cornelius, of 993 Skyline drive, Daly City, was an honored guest at a Macy's dinner-theatre party recently in San Francisco, hosted by Ernest L. Molloy, president of Macy's (California) and his administrative board. The occasion was the welcoming of Miss Cornelius, buyer of infants' wear for the California division of seven Macy's stores, into the firm's 25-Year Club.

A transfer from Macy's (New York), where she had worked since college days, brought Miss Cornelius to Macy's San Francisco in 1946. Since then the firm has expanded into its present Bay Area family of stores, and will soon build a large and complete department store in the Westlake Shopping Center.

As a Roerig medical service representative, Krebs brings information on the company's ethical drug products and research discoveries to physicians, dentists, pharmacists, and other members of the health professions.

'Unification' Topic At Edison PTA Meet

The Thomas Edison PTA will meet Thursday, November 8, at 8 p. m. in the multi-use room.

The topic for the evening will be "Unification" in the schools.

The unit is fortunate to have as its guest Richard Foster, Jefferson Elementary School District superintendent, who will answer questions concerning unification.

As an added attraction, the students of Thomas Edison will demonstrate the physical fitness program in the schools.

Refreshments will be served. Parents and friends are invited to attend.

Mrs. Shew's first grade class won the "cookie jar" for the most parents attending the October meeting.

D.C. Man Completes Drug Firm Course

Otto F. Krebs, Jr., 240 Lake Merced boulevard, Daly City, a medical service representative of J. E. Roerig and Company, recently completed an intensive advanced training and review class at the firm's New York City headquarters.

The classes, taught by Roerig physicians, scientists and marketing specialists, covered medical subjects, pharmaceutical product information and management practices.

As a Roerig medical service representative, Krebs brings information on the company's ethical drug products and research discoveries to physicians, dentists, pharmacists, and other members of the health professions.

Halloween Artistry Seen On West Portal Windows

It happened in broad daylight on West Portal avenue on Sunday, October 28.

How strange, the curbs were lined with parked cars, people walked up and down the streets, and amidst all this, the windows of the stores and offices were being drenched in gallons of paint.

No chance for trick or treat, just paint and say nothing. A huge table at one end of the street dispersed paint to about 200 school children who then proceeded to arrange it in fiendish Halloween array on the West Portal glass. This was the scene of the tenth annual Halloween window painting contest on West Portal avenue. Art students from nearly all local schools came to display their artistic talent as well as their imagination.

TV Talent

On the preceding Friday morning, four students—Jeanne O'Connor, Jackie Costello, Jim Team and Tim McGeachy—gave a sample of their drawing talents during the Al Collins television show. On Monday, October 29, four judges, highly qualified in the art world, traveled up and down West Portal, affixing a critical eye to the eire efforts of the young painters.

The judges must have cast a furtive glance over the shoulder, or gave a secret shudder as these gaping ghosts and gaunt goblins glared at them from the haunted store fronts.

The Channel 5 noon news ventured onto the street with Nancy Clark to film the top winners and the awards for the next day's news. It was a novel thing, indeed, to see young people encouraged to do their best and be awarded for painting windows rather than being admonished to stay away.

Members of the West Portal Avenue Association, sponsors of the painting contest, feel that it is more than worth the effort.

Excitement Contagious

The excitement of the young participants is contagious. A warm, friendly sun blossomed out over West Portal on that Sunday, a smile of approval from above for the children who have a rare chance to express their ideas on Halloween.

The young ones enjoy the idea and at the same time most of them take the work very seriously. Several have sketched their drawings on paper, complete with colors. Then the outline is sketched on the window with white chalk. Next, the finished work begins, the careful, brow-furrowed application of the brush, caressing the unyielding glass into a living picture of Halloween madness. No one has had the courage to visit the street at night and report the awful apparitions aping at the scurrying figures of the worried walkers on West Portal.

The paint supply depot was situated in front of the association office, Verda Saylor (Don's Beauty House) was the chief operator for this affair. It turned out to be extremely well organized. Angie Carola (Daylight Market) assisted Verda at the paint dispensing area.

Proud Winners

All afternoon the young ones appeared looking for more blue or orange or whatever. Hundreds of people drove or walked up and down, observing the art work in progress. The winners of the contest have good reason to be proud. The competition was formidable and the judges highly competent. They were Jack Morgan, Edna Van Koughnet, Al Denk and Al Bacari. The list of winners follows. There are four categories, according to the grade level of the contestants.

First place winners in the sixth grade elementary schools were from the West Portal School. They are Penny Cummings and Ann Quiet who did the John Rossi Flower Shop.

Among the eighth grade elementary school, the winners, from St. Cecilia's School, were Denelle Frahm, Jeanne Miller and Patricia Gwilliam, who did the window for Jim's Donuts.

The Junior High School first place winners, from Herbert Hoover, Junior High, were Keiko Uchida and Tina Hamilton for their work on the O'Dee Annu Shoppe.

Loan Company Window
High school top place was taken by Jeanne O'Connor and Jackie Costello from Mercy High School.

They painted the Colonial Savings and Loan window.
The second place winners from the sixth grade elementary schools came from the Lakeshore School. The students were Sandy Pivnick, Lynne Silver and Terri Rothchild. They

The junior high school second place went to Herbert Hoover students, Katherine Trijonis, Helen Jones and Phyllis Dake, who did the Carpets from McKown window.

The high school second place rests with Mercy High for their work on the Webber Shoppe.

More Prizes

Third prize for the sixth grade elementary schools went to West Portal School for their work on the window of the Adeline Bake Shop.

The eighth grade elementary category was won by students from St. Emydius for their work on West Portal Joe's.

The junior high school third place went to Herbert Hoover Junior High School again for their work on the Kerman Rug window.

The high school third place was taken by Mercy High for the work on the West Portal Music window. The students were Judy O'Hanlon, Linda Walsh and Linda Mullin. We regret that not all of the names of the winners could be obtained in time for this report.

Everyone had a wonderful time during this contest. Perhaps next year will see a more hideous horrible spectacle during the Sunday just before Halloween.

County Cancer Group Views Living Habits

The painstaking detective work which led to discovery of the tragic effects of thalidomide has demonstrated the importance of studies such as the six-year study of the relationship of human living habits to cancer which is now well past the half-way mark.

According to Dr. Stanford B. Rossiter, secretary of the San Mateo County branch of the American Cancer Society, some 200 San Mateo County volunteers are conducting their third annual follow-up of 3,148 residents enrolled in the fact-finding project.

"Analysis of the information gathered in the six-year study may lead to discovery of drugs, foods, living habits, or environmental hazards contributing to the start of cancer," Dr. Rossiter said.

"A similar study, conducted on a smaller scale several years ago, enabled the American Cancer Society to show a statistical relationship between cigarette smoking and cancer of the lung which has withstood every attempt to challenge it, and in fact has been supported by considerable laboratory evidence since it was first brought to public attention in 1954."

Dr. Rossiter praised both the enrollees and the volunteers participating in the current study, pointing out that their "patience" during these six years may help to reduce the number of cancer "patients" in years to come.

Westborough—Maximum Living On Minimum Land

The controversial town house concept in California suburban housing, part of the 659-acre $150,000,000 Westborough project near Daly City, has been approved by the San Mateo County board of supervisors.

The general plan which had been approved earlier by the county planning commission calls for a community that will eventually accommodate 18,000 people in four different types of dwelling units: Single family homes (this 700-home section was approved earlier and is now under way), Town Houses in court groupings surrounded by green areas, garden apartments and tower apartments.

The developers expect to have 300 homes completed by the end of this year. Families are moving into Westborough at the rate of eight per week.

Shopping Center

Also proposed are regional and neighborhood shopping centers, three elementary schools and one intermediate school, four church sites, several tot-lots, a branch library, fire station and 124 acres of open space.

Westborough's general plan was prepared by Herman D. Ruth, well-known city and regional planning consultant.

Frank W. Perkins, Westborough general manager, pointed out in his presentation that more than 20% of the total 659 acres will be graded for greenbelts and recreational facilities. "This area will encircle the residential neighborhoods and will buffer them from possible noise from highways and commercial areas."

This interesting departure from conventional suburban living has been hailed by county recreation director Ralph Shaw as promising "one of the best examples of total community recreation development in the state."

Shaw is recognized as one of the nation's outstanding authorities on parks and recreation.

The Westborough general plan introduces a completely new concept in suburban housing development—the Town House.

More Freedom, Privacy
Long an important segment of San Francisco housing and already a reality in Santa Clara County, the Town House has been growing in suburban popularity as a dwelling offering more freedom, privacy and space than an apartment while retaining an apartment's compactness and rental advantage.

The Town House essentially is a high-quality, attached two-story home, but the suburban version differs from the standard city "row house" by the addition of adjoining community park and recreation area referred to as "common green."

According to Sasaki, Walker and Associates, Westborough's

site planning consultants, this common green area opens off the back patios of each Town House and provides solution to the problem of bandbox backyards, the use of streets for playgrounds, and the monotony of street patterns and uniform set-back regulations.

Recreation director Shaw said he was "very much impressed with the plans for Westborough recreational areas." He pointed out that the developers had agreed to level the open spaces to "acceptable grades," so that the district could provide the necessary recreational installations.

Members of the county planning staff have voiced enthusiasm over the Town House concept.

Acceptance of the general plan by the board of supervisors will require changes in zoning regulations to allow for the creation of Town House areas with adequate protection for future development.

The Peninsula has traditionally favored single-family homes on relatively wide lots, but county officials admit that the influx of population is making land increasingly scarce, with unlesened demand for high standard living.

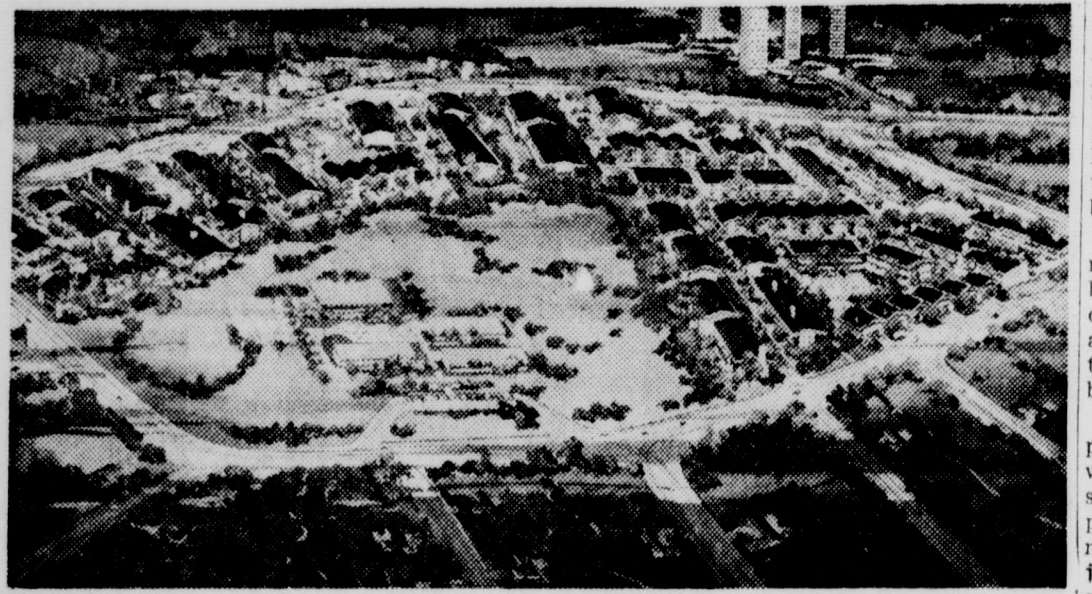

City planners in Santa Clara discovered that a recent Town House development there added no greater density to the area, because roads within the development were regarded as driveways and were counted within the total acreage.

Westborough developers plan to construct between 11.8 and 13.2 dwelling units per acre, all on cul de sacs, with more than 22 acres graded for greenways and open space for recreation facilities. High density is defined as 30 to 50 units per acre.

The promising aspects of Town Houses are these: the new concept provides maximum living on minimum land; the units are related architecturally to allow better site development than is possible with row after row of single-family homes; they are an excellent source of investment by adding to the county tax base and, in addition to being handsome architecturally in themselves, Town Houses give variety to the community's visual pattern.

With the general plan now approved, next step for the developers will be construction of a pilot project which will illustrate the use of land and site development for county authorities.

THIS PICTURE shows a Town House grouping in relation to a proposed Westborough elementary school site. One of the attractive features of this arrangement is that children will go to school and play in common green and park areas without having to cross streets. Westborough developers are working closely with South San Francisco unified school district officials to set aside best possible school sites.

SHOWN HERE are the proposed Westborough Town Houses in a grouping or "cluster." Feature of the Town Houses in this arrangement is the common green area serving all of the units in the group.

Each unit has off-street parking and two-car garage. Offering almost as much living space (three and four bedrooms and two baths) as conventional dwellings, the Town Houses will be individually owned (Price $18,000 to $23,000) and all services, including landscaping and maintenance of structure and common green, are included in the cost.

SPACIOUSNESS and livability are emphasized in the drawing of this Town House interior. Designed for modern living, the Town Houses will have special appeal to young working couples as well as the elderly because they are relieved of maintenance and upkeep problems. Price of the Town House will include all services. Efficient use of space gives a Town

House occupant almost as much room as found in moderate priced conventional homes.

INTERESTING and varied architectural designs in the Westborough Town Houses, appropriately landscaped, will provide a refreshing change to the community's visual pattern. Studies show need for a high quality Town House development to fill increasing gap in housing supply. Greater than an apartment, the Town House offers freedom, privacy and spaciousness but maintains compactness with readily available landscaped open areas. Because price of Town Houses include landscaping and maintenance, high standards and values are retained.

Ciampi Named JS Freeway Consultant

Selection of Mario J. Ciampi, a leading San Francisco architect, and noted designer of Jefferson School District Schools as a consultant on the bridge structures on the Junipero Serra Freeway in San Mateo and Santa Clara Counties was announced last week by Governor Edmund G. Brown.

At the same time the governor endorsed steps being taken by the Division of Highways to obtain advice from outstanding architects in further improving the beauty of freeway and other bridge structures.

This will involve an advisory panel of architects to confer with Division engineers on design policy, the governor explained, with a view toward making future construction projects add to the beauty of their surroundings.

Ciampi will be the third special consultant on aesthetics on specific bridge and freeway projects in the San Francisco Bay area to be retained by the state this year.

The Department of Public Works has previously contracted with two other San Franciscans, William Stephen Allen, president of the California Council, American Institute of Architects, in advising on the design of the new high-level portion of the San Mateo-Hayward Bridge; and Lawrence Halprin, landscape architect, is taking part in preliminary studies for a parkway in the Golden Gate Park Panhandle area of San Francisco.

"We are determined to make our freeways and bridges as beautiful as possible," the governor said. "Some of these new projects, like the Junipero Serra Freeway down the Peninsula, can be designed for maximum beauty as well as safety and efficiency, and we are very happy to obtain the service of a noted architect like Mr. Ciampi to help our excellent staff of highway bridge designers who have already been working with local committees on the Junipero Serra and will continue to do so."

"Mr. Ciampi has an international reputation, and has created some outstanding structures for public as well as private clients. Westmoor High School in Daly City is one of his best-known designs, but there are many others. He is now developing a master plan of the downtown area for the San Francisco Planning Commission."

Ciampi is a native of San Francisco, and maintains his offices at 425 Bush Street in that city. He received his architectural education at Harvard University and has been commissioned to design buildings in many parts of the world.

Ciampi was selected from a number of California architects whose names were furnished by the California Council, A.I.A., at the request of the Division of Highways.

These students are working with small groups of children, thereby giving individual help, doing clerical work connected with the regular classroom routine, preparing seat work as directed by the teacher, and many other tasks that are outgrowths of actual teaching.

Halloween Parade

The annual Halloween street parade for Vista Mar was again enjoyed by parents and friends. Invitations, illustrated by each individual student, were taken home. The line of march on Southgate provided for a display of creativity, in terms of students' originality as they carried articles they had made and masks they had created.

Classroom Visits

"Effective Teaching Meets the Challenge of Change" is the theme for "Open House" at Vista Mar on Tuesday evening, November 13, from 7:15 to 8 p.m. Although invitations list the time as 7:30-8:00, at the request of parents we are opening 15 minutes earlier. This will avail parents of the opportunity to visit the classroom and see some of the activities in fundamentals which are completed and planned.

Bulletin Boards

Creativity motivated by Mrs. Susan Burney's fourth grade and Mrs. Peggy Christgau's fifth grade groups at Vista Mar resulted in attractive bulletin boards planned and arranged by the students themselves. Mrs. Peggy Christgau's fifth grade reporters wrote: "Our class made a Halloween bulletin board. We made it by tearing paper instead of using scissors. In it there is a haunted house, a witch up by the moon, a couple of ghosts, two cats, a few bats, a couple of pumpkins, a dead tree, some gravestones and a picket fence. We used colored paper to make it."

Half-dollars were first issued in 1794.

M. Pauline Brown Classes See Museum

The children from Mrs. Evelyn Perkins' and Mrs. Barbara Busetto's classes shared experiences of interest and value on their recent study trip. Bus driver Charles Ehrhorn treated the classes to the scenic route over Twin Peaks to the Josephine Randall Junior Museum, where the teachers presented their individual groups with vivid explanations of the museum's exhibits of Indian culture.

The groups have been making a study of the differences which nature brings to all animal life in the desert and coastal lands. Here was offered an opportunity to compare the vast differences through exhibits of Pueblo Indians and California Indians. Museum guide Keith Conragen exhibited animals for the enthusiastic children, illustrating and explaining for them the wide range of adaptations animals can make to the areas in which they live.

Highlight of the trip was watching John Burnside heat and mold sterling silver in his sandstone molds. He prepared pieces for an intricately-crafted squash blossom necklace. A wide variety of turquoise and silver jewelry, clothing, blankets and other items typical to the Navajo culture were exhibited. Some of the items were made to be sold by the talented craftsmen of the Arizona Indian Guild. Parents who accompanied the children were Mrs. Philip Markinson and Mrs. Fernando Goin.

Council President

For the second consecutive year, Marc Holmes has been elected president of the student body of the M. Pauline Brown School. Richard Kass has been elected vice-president and Debra Goin, secretary. Other council members are Tina Caggiano, Steven Williamson and Kathy Blume for the sixth grade; Steven Ferreira, Kelly O'Neill and Roxanne Fallon for the fourth grade, and Lorraine Thomas for the fifth grade.

2nd Daniel Webster PTA Education Night

Mr. John Richard, intermediate grade consultant for the Jefferson Elementary School District, will be the guest speaker for the second of two parent education programs, sponsored by the Daniel Webster PTA and the school faculty.

The program, held on Thursday, November 8, at 7:30 p.m., in the multi-purpose room of the Daniel Webster School, will cover the intermediate grade curriculum and how parents may best encourage their children to learn.

Thomas Edison

Dramatization of classical literature appropriate to the season, is being performed by the fourth grade pupils of Thomas Edison school. Use of the choral reading technique as an approach to the classics enables the children to grow simultaneously in other areas.

In addition to developing an appreciation for, and an understanding of, the works, the children will gain insight and receive help in correct speech, cooperative presentation, and critical listening. Two selections chosen for the Halloween holiday were "The Goblins'll Get You," and "Little Orphan Annie," by James Whitcomb Riley.

SSF Girl Ranks High In Merit Scholarship Test

A South San Francisco High School Senior has been honored for her high performance on the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test given last spring. Each student who is endorsed by his school receives a formal letter of Commendation signed by his principal and the president of the National Merit Scholarship Corporation.

Louis Bagnall, South SF principal, has announced that the commended student is Sue Maas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Maas, 238 Alta Mesa drive, South San Francisco.

Sue was among 16,000 other high school juniors who took the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test last March. The test is a three-hour examination that covers five separate areas of educational development. It was the first step in the eighth annual Merit Program.

This year's program will conclude about April 25, 1963, with the naming of students who will receive four-year Merit Scholarships to the colleges of their choice.

The commended students and the Semifinalists who do not win Merit Scholarships are considered for certain other scholarships that are offered through the facilities of the

South S. F. Students Enjoy Sukiyaki

Twenty members of the International Friendship Club of South San Francisco High School ate a sukiyaki dinner at the Yamato Sukiyaki House on October 23.

In abidance with Japanese customs, shoes were not worn in the dining room, chopsticks were used in place of western eating utensils, and members of the I. F. C. knelt at a low table for the dinner. Only a few of the members requested chair-type back supporters.

Bill Gorham, last summer's foreign exchange student to Japan, instructed the club on the correct usage of chopsticks. He also informed the group on many of the interesting Japanese customs and traditions.

After dinner, the club toured the streets of Chinatown.

Officers of the club are Charlie Soendjasmone, president; Carl Duham, vice president, and Pauline Hamel, secretary-treasurer. Mrs. Edna deLarios is the sponsor.

Mental Health Study At W'moor

Mental health, behavior patterns and other phases of psychology are being studied by 31 Westmoor High School students. Explaining this science of the human mind is Mrs. Rosemary Smith, who hopes for a field trip to San Francisco State College before Thanksgiving. The trip is still in the mill though, and depends on transportation facilities.

Classwork, relates Mrs. Smith, is geared somewhat like college classes. Students wishing to take psychology are primarily college prep students. Lectures are foremost and reading only supplementary, contrary to the usual pattern of high school study.

To be studied during this one semester course are how intelligence is used, personality adjustments, behavioral patterns and problems, mental health, and the learning processes.

A quiz and a test are given by Mrs. Smith, and each student will present one experimental project during the second quarter. In the past, projects relating to extra-sensory perception, lie detection, and condition response have been submitted by students.

Juniors Fill Out Test Questionnaire

The "junior testing" program last week numbered Westmoor High School students among the eleventh graders throughout California taking part in the testing.

Studying questions and then filling in the correct circle on their answer sheet, students executed their part in a process to arrive at a statewide average for juniors and give clues to specific areas of weakness in our educational system in California.

As the testing program becomes standardized throughout the state, it may become possible for schools to note weaknesses in their individual curriculums, as well as allow for recognition of their outstanding scholars.

Having A Ball At Terra Nova

Big news at Terra Nova this week is the Senior Dance, which was held in the gym from 8:30 to 11:30 p. m. on Friday, October 26.

It was a Sadie Hawkins dance and everyone came dressed as Lil' Abner or his friends. The attendance was a record 300 and everyone really enjoyed himself, especially the seniors, who at one time formed a circle on the floor chanting senior chants.

The people in charge of the dance were Allaire Sawyer, publicity; Kay Marshall, decoration; Linda Mallauesna, refreshments, and Eileen Nannery, tickets.

Last Saturday, October 27, several exciting events took place during the first of Westmoor's annual Club Days, October 29-30.

Under the direction of club commissioner Jayne Monson, a handbook describing the purpose and activities of each club was compiled with the help of the club presidents.

These pamphlets, passed out during first period to each student, were designed to give Westmoorites a better understanding of extra-curricular activities.

Second step was setting up tables in the cafeteria during both lunches with club presidents on hand to answer questions and take club sign-ups. Publicity and information apparently proved worthwhile, for approximately 275 students enlisted in the clubs of their choice.

Westmoor Speakers Learn Salesmanship

Westmoor "public speakers" learned their first lesson in salesmanship under the direction of Miss Mary Ann Holden. Students sold everything from fellow pupils to Sam's Polyunsaturated Celtra Tonic Painkiller.

Also included in the sales campaign were tennis shoes, happiness, intelligence in the form of black-rim glasses with no lenses, and five 50% Siamese kittens whose only fault was that they were 100% black.

Participating in the event were Jack Petric, who played the part of a sensational mechanical man that doesn't work; Jackie Swanson, who created this monstrosity; Marc Mallinger, Russ Johns, Pat Weathersby, Jerry Ward, Mike Kullen, Sharon Marshall, Kathy Sarubbi and Roselle Fishel.

Fresh Score High In Room 24 Posters

The Westmoor High School social science classes, under the instruction of Miss Hildegard Seidel, produce weekly posters featuring traffic problems, laws and safety slogans in connection with driver education.

The posters, which serve as outlets for the talents of those who are artistically inclined, but for the most part, represent the plain hard work of industrious students, and then displayed on the bulletin boards in Room 24 to be enjoyed by classmates.

Since the posters are changed each week, the displays of the freshmen students always exhibit fresh, new ideas. Complimented by Miss Seidel for their exceptional posters were Brad Cunningham, Donna Eberly, Lynn Ferguson, Greg McHugh and Wendy Morrison.

Yell Leaders And Pom-Pom Girls For B. Franklin School

For the first time in history, Ben Franklin intermediate school will have yell leaders and pom-pom girls to lead and represent the student body at sports events. These girls will be active at all school sports. Their jobs are to lead the students in cheering on the Falcon teams and keep school spirit high.

The need for yell-leaders and pom-pom girls has come since the foundation of a league for intermediate schools in the vicinity. The girls were chosen by members of the faculty after try-outs in the girls' physical education classes.

The new pom-pom girls are Lisa Hollenbeck, Gaby Whitney, Sherry Shields, Scharol Battaglia, Patricia Lunch and Phyllis Hargrove.

The yell-leaders are Carol Tregenza, Gail Land and Peggy Goodell.

Academic Improvement Class At South SF

In order to help students with study problems, a special after school class is now being held Mondays and Thursdays for South San Francisco High School students. This special course is called "Academic Improvement" and is primarily for students who have obtained two or more "F's" on their report cards and need special assistance in study habits.

Students who receive low grades are required to take this class. However, the class is not limited to these people. "A number of people have volunteered to raise their grades," comments Marlowe Tyler, social studies teacher and head of the operation.

The course is named "Academic Improvement" because it is open to all students. Approximately 150 students are in the program.

Last year the course was offered only to students who had low grades.

"84% of last years participants improved their grades," says Tyler.

The class teachers include Thomas Gaffney, Lawrence Longwell, and Marlowe Tyler.

Menlo-Atherton Debates Westmoor

Menlo-Atherton High School, scene of the October 27 Golden Gate regional convention of the Junior Statesmen of America, was visited by Westmoor High School students Kathy Adams, Sue Eeer, Denise Jamin, Carol Gallman, Jack Petranker, Diana Stipelkovich and their sponsor, Alvin Wolf.

Lasting from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., the day's agenda was crowded with many activities, ranging from debates and decisions on current legislative issues to speeches given by representatives of the nation's two major political parties — William J. Keller, Democratic candidate for the office in Congress for San Mateo County district, and David H. Keyston, director and vice president of Republican Associates.

In debate against two Menlo-Atherton students, Westmoor High School seniors Kathy Adams and Jack Petranker were given the negative side of the question: Resolved, that Pat Brown should be re-elected as governor of California.

Regarding the development of various literature forms, the styles characteristic of certain eras, and the styles of French masters, reports are being written and presented by each of the 11 class members. The presentations will enrich the cultural background of the students.

Among class members studying under John Milton are seniors Chris Hartman, Jo Ann Pulsifer, Julie Wovitz, James Butler and Gloria Moore.

Fourth-year Frenchmen include Charlotte Corvo, Eugene Poggio, Ann Irby, Marilyn Downey, Marguerite Jarchow and David Levine.

LAW IN ACTION

FIRE, FIRE

The clang and sound of the fire engine rushing to a fire fascinates most people. People flock to the fire where they can get burned, or crushed in a crowd or the rush of firemen or policemen.

The other day a big fire broke out in Mrs. Jones' neighborhood. Feeding the fire was a big wooden house under construction, with heavy oils and tars near it. A crowd gathered. Mrs. Jones got pushed closer and closer to the fire. All at once a new gas line blew up. It knocked Mrs. Jones down. Running from the fire, the crowd trampled and crippled her.

Mrs. Jones sued the builder. She said that he was at fault for welding so near the oily timbers and the gas line. He should have known of the danger.

The court agreed with Mrs. Jones. She assumed no risk by watching the fire. For she could not have known of the gas line or any of its dangers. Nor did she contribute to her accident. The flying debris and the stampeding crowd caused her injury, not her own negligence. The jury decided that these events were foreseeable and were caused by the builder's negligent use of his welding equipment. Nevertheless, it's a good idea to stand clear of crowds which may panic.

Even though someone is at fault, unforeseeable events can relieve him of the blame, or some of it. Just because you negligently start a fire, does not mean you are liable to the owners of every building in the fire's path. A sudden wind that whips up the fire may intervene to relieve you of liability.

But persons who interfere with fire trucks, or run over fire hoses, and stop firemen at work can be liable to building owners for their interference.

Note: California lawyers offer this column so you may know about our laws.

It's no secret that fresh water fishing isn't what it used to be. There are just too many fishermen and not enough fish.

More than 25 million anglers fished regularly last year. That's approximately five million more fishermen on the waterways than five years ago. And, it keeps growing like that every year. Conservation programs just can't keep up with the fishermen. But for one hopeful sign, we might as well cast around our backyard.

The one hopeful sign is that salt water fishing is on the increase. It's growing by half a million fishermen a year. As the popularity of salt water sport fishing grows, it's been proven that the pressure lessens on our lakes and streams.

Another hopeful sign is that in recent years, nearly 70 per cent of the nation's population has located in the big cities such as New York or Los Angeles. This is happy news because it puts a big proportion of the would-be and future anglers right on top of salt water. But while there's plenty of water, there aren't any major fishing facilities, and slowly, but surely, some of the best salt water fishing spots are being destroyed.

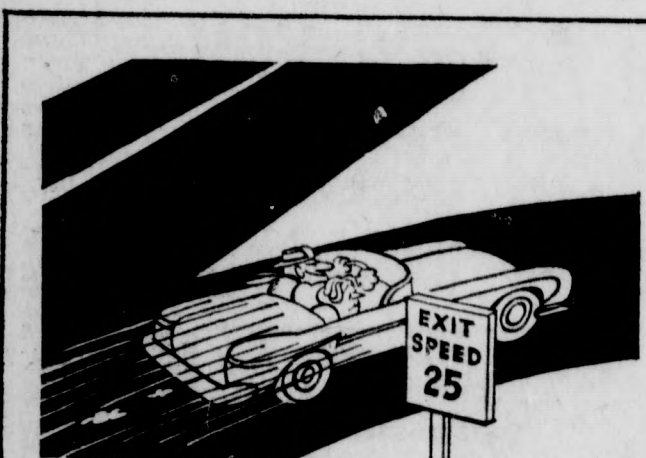

A major effort is afoot to improve salt water angling and sports fishing along the 11,500 mile U.S. coastline. For if we don't, believe it or not, the oceans can be fished out, as far as coastal sportfishing is concerned. Last year, six million anglers caught over a million gamefish. Experts say that in less than twenty years, more than twice as many anglers may be taking more than twice as many fish out annually. And, that's no fish story.

A start has been made by the Department of Interior. Its purpose is to study marine fish with an eye on how to expand fishing grounds along the coastline, open new spawning grounds for popular species, and save spawning grounds now being destroyed by pollution. Its work will benefit fresh and salt water enthusiasts alike from Maine to Florida, Michigan to Louisiana, and Alaska to Southern California.

It's in just about everybody's interest to see that full scale marine research program gets underway soon.

Frankly, I can hardly wait.

Put about one-fourth cup of coffee in a pot, add a quart of boiling water and stir. Then cover and let stand over low heat for about five minutes to bring out the full rich flavor.

Start the brunch with grapefruit juice "old fashioned", made with reconstituted quick-frozen grapefruit juice and crushed ice with a maraschino cherry for garnish. Serve a hot dish in a casserole or chafing dish, and pass Orange Glazed Muffins with the coffee.

Outdoor Living

Ancient Greeks, lovers of the outdoors, were the first civilized society to originate the outdoor barbecue. From noblemen to merchants, they believed food cooked out of doors was flavored by the gods and imbued the eater with strength and health.

Holding court in the out of doors, France's King Louis XIV turned his palace grounds into a playground for grownups. Cabinet ministers and diplomats gambled on see-saws and swings, played such games as "Drop the Handkerchief," and "Who's Got the Thimble."

Modern equipment makers, catering to the outdoor trend in America have developed new lawn and leisure furnishings for outdoor living. Newest of these is a Lawn and Garden Port, an all-steel "beach-side cabana" for the backyard! Made by Arrow Metal Products Corp., N.Y., it has a weatherproof Pressurecoated plastic finish inside and out, is assembled at home in an hour, making a novel companion-piece to the outdoor barbecue.

FISHING LINES

By DICK WOLFF

A university zoologist, Professor Paul Needham of California, claims that fishermen don't know how to catch fish. The professor, who is also a director of the university's Sagehen Creek Project, claims that very rarely is a stream "fished out". And, to prove his point, he cited a recent survey by the California Department of Fish & Game which showed sixty-five to seventy-five per cent of all fishermen do not catch anything, even when hatchery fish are dumped into the stream right in front of them.

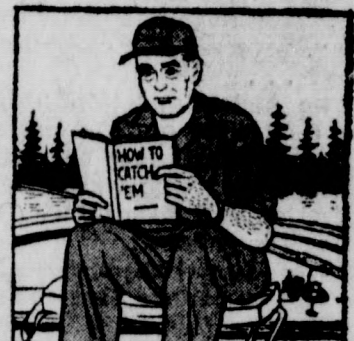

While most anglers might take this accusation as a joke, it is true. To wit, some years ago a group of regulars complained to the New York Department of Conservation that the famed Beaverkill was "fished out." The department sent a couple of experts to the scene equipped with a portable generator. A mild charge was put through the water and scores of slightly stunned trout floated to the surface in front of the slightly stunned anglers.

The moral of the story is simply that fishing is an art not just an exercise. Actually, a relatively few experts are taking fifty per cent of the fish.

The expert angler will fish early and late, knowing that slim pickings occur at mid-day. He'll go about his pleasure slowly and deliberately. First, he'll size up the stream or lake, choose the most likely spots, where a lurking trout or bass might rest waiting for food to drop off the banks or wash into a riffle.

Once the preliminaries are completed, he'll quietly move into the river down-stream. Or, if the fish are very skittish and the water is still and clear, he might stay well away from the river edge and cast from the bank to avoid a give-away shadow on the water. He'll work his way up-stream knowing that sound, even a little, carries down-stream.

The careful lake fishermen will know the water temperature and that lake trout like cool water between 40 and 45 degrees. A spell of hot weather and the surface temperature might run to 60 or 70 degrees. If there are lake trout there, they'll be near the cooling inlets in a spring fed lake — and down deep. Professor Needham pointed out that the biggest fish kill is made by the weather. It's a shame to waste good fish when a little care and patience could mean trout or bass for dinner.

There is an old saying in the newspaper field that "all business and news is local." Every successful newspaper has followed this precept, from largest metropolitan daily to the smallest country weekly.

This is because we are all most interested in ourselves, our friends and acquaintances.

With the change of ownership of the Westlake Times and The Record, effective with this issue, we wish to emphasize that this philosophy of local business and local news is our philosophy, and we will make every endeavor to cover these fields.

We are pleased with the cordial reception we have had from city officials, businessmen, and others. It strengthens our desire to publish a product that meets the community's needs. And where we find that we can improve our newspapers, those changes will be made.

We look forward to being a representative newspaper of this great area.

The Daly City police department should be commended for keeping Daly City safe and sane on Halloween and preventing outbreaks of violence.

Last year it was a different story. The local department was totally unprepared for a near-riot of some 500 juveniles at a local drive-in.

Police had been tipped off this year that some "rumblings" might break out in the Westlake and Skyline areas. However, by disarming youths of eggs and shaving cream dispensers and breaking up small groups who looked troublesome, the "rumblings" never occurred.

The Daly City Youth Commission, formed early this year to investigate ways and means to help solve juvenile problems, can also be thankful of the police department's strong stand.

Daly City has had juvenile troubles in the past. Some of the youths getting into trouble in this community came from other areas. Some were local youths who belonged to local "gangs."

By preventing outbreaks before they occur, the Daly City police give warning both to local youths and to outsiders that they should take their violence elsewhere.

The dirty books . . .

The books had gaudy covers featuring nubile, half-clad young women in various poses of abandon. The story content ranged over wantonness and seduction, fellatio and lesbianism, sadism and sodomy, rape and voyeurism, masochism and prostitution, to name a few subjects.

The story content of the many books displayed for sale at the cigar store concerned sexual topics, mostly of an illicit nature, all graphically described with inflammatory detail. Protagonists were portrayed in continual word pictures in every conceivable athletic juxtaposition of sexual degeneration.

Erotic sagas featured characters in two and threes to casts of characters numbering a dozen or more, all shamelessly (and profitably, presumably, to the publisher) cavorting for the Daly City reading public.

The books were, in our judgment, obscene. Redemptive features were either nonexistent or meaningless. Let's face it — a person just doesn't believably get religion after 200 pages of well adjectived licentiousness for any other reason than to give the story a legal redeeming feature.

The arrest . . .

The police read the books and thought they were obscene. The district attorney's people did likewise. Three were selected and filed on. A warrant issued. The cigar store owners, having previously been duly warned, were arrested. Books were seized. Everybody went to court and the jury found the books obscene.

Civil Liberties . . .

Prosecution and defense were vigorous. An attorney from the American Civil Liberties Union defended the book seller. The three pertinent books were read aloud to the jury. The jury convicted the defendants on all counts. The conviction was appealed by the defense. The appellate department eventually, the other day, reversed the conviction.

Why? . . .

As we understand it at this point, the reversal involved a question of due process of law. Prosecution had objected to testimony of a witness, an out-of-town professional man who was to testify.

Objection had been upheld, and was the eventual reason for the reversal.

Shall we forget the problem?

Are we to believe that such garbage is standard reading fare in this city? If so, a lot of man hours have been unnecessarily expended in investigation and court testimony in this matter.

What does the community say? Do we need a new law? Perhaps, if the present statute is unworkable, a change should be made.

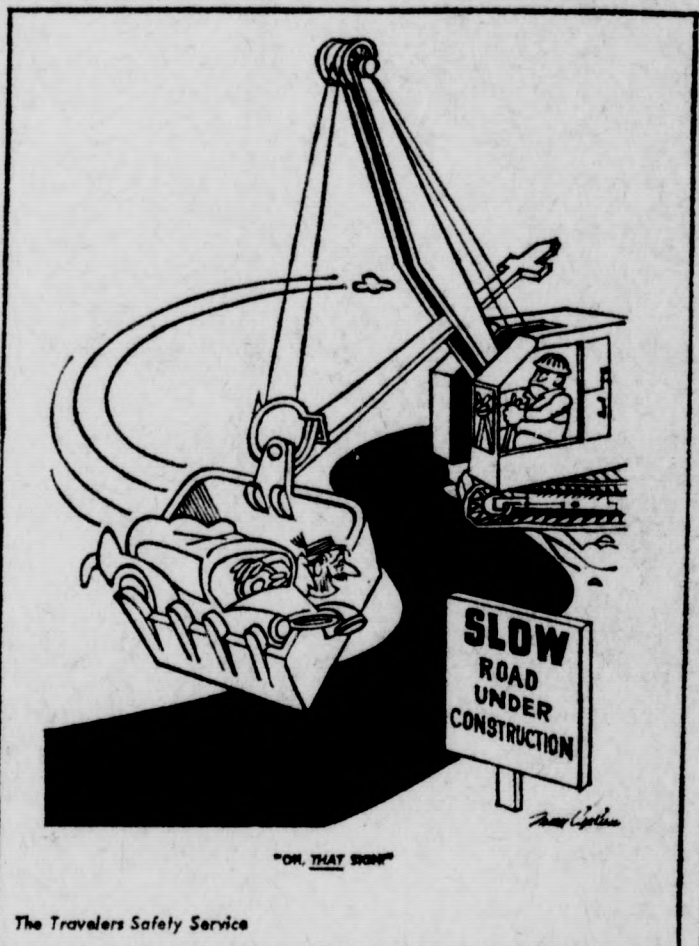

Do you want us to forget the books? We hardly think so, if the commending letters, and the courtroom audience were any indication at all of the public feeling.

The police as censors . . .

The Daly City police are not and do not intend to function as censors. The ACLU will continue to raise the forbidding specter of censorship.

It is really the law that is on trial, a law which is finely interpreted by the common denominator of contemporary standards. Much confusion is generated by appeals for observance of the civil liberties of dirty

The current meetings on the North County School district by the San Mateo County Committee on School District Organization has thrown the local populace into somewhat of a tumult.

The committee, acting on a mandate by the State Legislature, must come up with some kind of plan before September 1963. If not, the State will move in and set up their own type of school district.

The Jefferson District is sort of a test case for the Committee, as it is the first section of the county visited. The problems which the committee encounters here will no doubt reoccur when they head south for their meetings with the San Mateo and Redwood City Districts.

There is an abundance of confusion, mixed with personal emotions, prevailing at these augmented committee meetings. And things will probably get worse before they get better. The next meeting will be Wednesday night, November 28, and the committee has made it clear that it wants the unification proposal passed.

This will cause much dissatisfaction among the local trustees, who are sitting in as an integral part of the committee.

Here is the situation as we diagnose it. On one side the five school boards and on the other the 11 member Committee. The trustees are proud of their districts, and they have a right to be, and seem unyielding to the rational argument put up by the committee.

To them, if they approve and endorse the unification plan, they believe they are admitting that they weren't able to handle the situation.

Actually, they aren't fighting the unification per se, but fighting a change in tradition. They resent the infringement of a body far off in Sacramento telling them how to run their school district.

The districts contend there will be a loss in local control, while the Committee says unification will save money and centralize the responsibility.

Both factions have good intentions, but their perspectives are sometimes distorted by emotions. The inevitability of unification preys like an ominous shadow over the local boards who have served their communities well.

The committee will undoubtedly pass the unification proposal at the next meeting. And it will probably be passed by an 11-5 count—the five dissenting votes representing each of the districts which get one collective vote.

There is a possibility that the Laguna Salada board will vote for unification. The reason is that they have the most to gain in the situation. Their low assessed valuation can do nothing but go up by including their territory in the unified district. On the other hand, Laguna Salada has shown signs of being against the plan because they feel it will strip them of local control.

Regardless of how the plan passes, it still must be returned to the voters of the respective districts for approval.

Whether it will pass by popular vote is pure conjecture at this point. We would say "no" if an election were to be held next week. But several months of lobbying and discussions by the pro-unification faction might change the tide of sympathy.

One thing for sure, it is going to be interesting to watch the procedure of the issue during the next few months. And we fervently hope that the arguments, both pro and con, proceed in a rational vein.

book publishers and sellers, and with the censorship argument.

We submit that the investigation, and the arrest, were all conducted by the book, legally and correctly. We are more concerned about whether the majority of the citizens are to receive the protection of their sensibilities from law breaking pornography distributors.

Is this freedom of speech and press? We think that in this case both the spirit and the letter of the law have been badly bent by obscene books.

Something For Everyone

by Samuel Chandler

On August 3, the Magnificent Destiny by Paul Wellman was published. By October 18, 22,712 copies had been sold.

This is historical fiction by a man who has an almost spiritual reverence for the background and varied peoples of America. To write about America, he gave up a career as a journalist and later as an author of screen plays for Warner Brothers and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Mr. Wellman's desire is "to add something of interest, perhaps even of value, to his readers' knowledge of his country, his people, and his world."

The Magnificent Destiny is the story of the friendship between Andrew Jackson and Sam Houston. Here one reads of Jackson's greatest battles and his drive to the presidency. Here one sees Sam Houston fight for education, for recognition, for love, to lose all while serving as Governor of Tennessee; all of this before his flight to Texas and greatness.

Paul Wellman has written many novels. Among them are The Bowl of Brass, The Walls of Jericho, The Iron Mistress, The Comancheros, Angel and Spurs, The Fiery Flower, Hide the Red Earth.

As Mr. Wellman recreates history, he fills his books with romance and drama. His characters love and hate in a grand manner. His heroines possess unmatched love and beauty. Some are sweet and warm; others are fiery. Mr. Wellman's books provide an exciting evening's entertainment.

Generally, critics agree that Paul Wellman writes with skill. He is far superior to some who turn out shallow historical novels. Sometimes, however, his characters and his plot are swallowed up by the background. When this happens the story falls short of literary excellence.

Fogs Help As Well As Hinder Mankind, Says UC Geographer

There seems to be a sound psychological basis for that popular figure of speech "to be in a fog." It's been shown, for example, that people are far less efficient in foggy weather than in fair, and during one of London's big fogs the Bank of England found it necessary to lock up all its important files and restrict its clerks to routine chores until the weather improved. Fog also seems to make delicate machinery less efficient. In foggy weather telephone dialing systems tend to produce wrong numbers spontaneously and even calculating machines make errors.

Meteorologically speaking, fog is one of a family of vapors, others being haze, mist, and cloud. Haze can be any sort of vapor—perhaps just smoke—which is sufficient to affect the transparency of air. Cloud, mist, and fog are all water vapor, and the relationships among them might be put like this: mist is a light fog, cloud is a fog at a high altitude, and fog is a cloud on the ground.

Fogs can form in several ways, says Dr. David Blumenstock, lecturer in geography on the University of California's Berkeley campus. One of the most common types is known as radiation fog. It occurs typically on cloudless nights when the surface of the earth has radiated heat far out into the atmosphere and the earth, now cooler itself, cools moist air in contact with it. This lower air, says Dr. Blumenstock, is dotted with billions of tiny nuclei—dust particles, the carbon of motor vehicle exhausts, microscopic materials of all sorts. They're so small, of course, we don't ordinarily see them, unless the sun happens to strike them in a certain way. When the moisture in the air condenses upon these minute floating objects we have fog.

Radiation fog, associated with cooling of the ground and of the lower air adjacent to the ground is especially common in the interiors of continents, particularly during the winter. For example, one can picture a situation in which a mass of cold air, driving southward out of Canada, hits the high plains of the United States, moves on into the prairies, and into the great industrial centers of the Midwest and East. In its wake the cold air is apt to leave the clear, cold conditions that give rise to radiation fog at night.

The cooling that yields fog can be brought about not only through night-time radiation but in many other ways. Coastal fog, for example, is formed when air rises and cools through expansion. A similar kind of cooling takes place when air moves up slope—and meteorologists commonly refer to this as upslope fog.

What happens in our own central United States is a good case in point. When a massive current of moist air from the Gulf of Mexico advances across the gently rising coastal plain, and pushes farther up the slopes of the central prairie regions and northwest up onto the High Plains, fog may blanket simultaneously an area close to a quarter of a million square miles in size—on area extending from Iowa on the north to Arkansas on the south and from Mississippi westward almost to the Rocky Mountains. Upslope fog often causes the closing down of airports in several different states at one time. It forms above and hangs over great regional expanses, the fog and cloud sometimes reaching heights of several hundred or even thousands of feet. By contrast, radiation fog typically thins out a few feet above the ground. Many people, while driving a car, have had the experience of feeling their way along the road in dense radiation fog on a dark night only to look up and see the stars.

Of the several types of fog the world over, one of the most spectacular is the phenomenal "ice crystal" fog. It occurs in cold lands at temperatures far below the zero point. Instead of water droplets forming around the billions of tiny nuclei in the air, ice crystals are formed. People who have experienced this sunlight hours the ice crystals sparkle like diamond chips and transform the air into a dazzling, luminous mass.

Fogs can be a hindrance to man, but they can also be of real benefit, says Dr. Blumenstock. There are places where fog adds to the ground appreciable amounts of moisture. Measurements of fog drip made in the Hawaiian Islands, in Tasmania, and South Africa have totaled as much as twenty inches of moisture per month. In certain favorable locations the fog clouds stream up slope across a forested area. The leaves and branches of the trees gather the water from the fog with such efficiency that water not only flows downward by way of leaf, twig, branch and trunk, but also, at times, drips directly to the ground from the sopping, wet leaf surfaces. Where this happens, there is frequently far more water received in a month from fog than from precipitation in the form of rain or snow.

"We are going to stop the clock," reports KQED, "and take a look at things past on Monday evening, November 19," when their annual report-meeting for all members is held at their studios, located on Fourth street in San Francisco. The meeting will be divided into two parts—a business meeting in the studio at 8 o'clock, followed by a televised report to members at home a half hour later.

Members are specifically requested by the station to notify them if they are planning on attending the meeting for the reason that "if all 15,000 members and their families showed up, neither the Fox Theatre, Civic Auditorium, or Opera House would be able to handle the crowd, let alone Studio A at KQED."

So if you plan to attend, do let them know. We strongly recommend that you go. We think many times that we in the Bay Area are prone to take our outstanding community station for granted, even though every week it is getting additional recognition, both national and international. By the way, too, if you aren't a member, send them a check and make your reservation to attend the meeting at the same time. You'll find the evening most stimulating and inspiring!

Been dreaming about a magic carpet that will fly you to distant lands? Dream no longer—just tune in your TV set to the many excellent travelogues that are shown weekly.

Last week we took a 4,000-mile trip down the Nile (special NBC documentary over KRON-TV), visited the cannibal kings of New Guinea (KTVU's "True Adventure") and flew "Across the Seven Seas" over KPX. The programs were in color and simply spectacular, because color is just made for travel films. These programs, too, are excellent television for youngsters—a most effective way to learn their geography lessons.

TV DATES TO JOT DOWN: Premiering November 5, 7:30 p.m., new eight-week series with Actor's Workshop, and on November 6, 8 p.m., new series produced by KQED for National Educational Television, titled "Lotte Lehmann Master Class."

Over KPX, November 7, 7:30 p.m., special CBS post-election summary and analysis, live from CBS news election headquarters.

Scheduled for November 11, 4:30 p.m., over NBC, KRON-TV, a look at the future home of the performing arts in Washington, D.C.

Over KGO-TV, on November 13, 10:30 p.m., "Bell and Howell Closeup," titled "The Big Revolving Door," on rehabilitation of short-term prisoners.

It's News To Vets

Q—Who has top priority for admission to VA hospitals?

A—Veterans in need of emergency medical care for service incurred or aggravated injuries or diseases.

Q—Do wives and children of veterans have any eligibility for VA medical care?

A—Not as such. If the wife is a veteran, she might have her own eligibility, of course. You may be thinking of the special restorative training provided certain children under VA War Orphans education assistance, but this is training rather than part of the VA medical program. Some children eligible for the War Orphans program but unable to pursue an education because of physical or mental disability may receive training such as speech and voice correction, lipreading, Braille reading and writing, and the like.

Q—How much does the VA spend annually on medical care for veterans?

A—Congress has approved an appropriation of $1,017,892,000 for that purpose for fiscal year 1963.

New Cala Food Store Opens In Pacifica

Pete Cala is the manager of the new Cala Foods store at 555 Coast Highway at Manor drive in Pacifica.

QUALITY MEATS—Pete Cala, manager of New Cala Foods store in Pacifica points out three-dimensional lettering which directs customers to quality meat department.

The new Cala Foods store opens today at 555 Highway at Manor drive, in Seacrest Square, Pacifica's newest shopping center.

Manager of the modern, fully-stocked store is Pete Cala, 34, one of seven brothers associated with Cala Foods Inc., the firm which operates in San Francisco and Daly City.

Cala, Korean veteran and father of two, has been manager of the company's Daly City store until recently. His brothers, John, president of the firm; Frank, Ed, Tom and Charlie, are all with him in the firm.

Pete points out the new store will feature latest design refrigeration units, with special freezers for meat, frozen foods, fresh fruits and vegetables, sea food, poultry and dairy foods.

There will also be a wine and gourmet section at the spacious market. Three-dimensional lettering, of which Cala is especially proud, directs customers to refrigerated sections.

Automatic doors allow customer checkout stands feature latest in cash registers, with change dispensers.

Spacious parking has been provided for customers, with two aisles in front and plenty of room on the sides of the store.

A new feature of the store is produce gondolas, which are stacked high with foodstuffs.

The Cala brothers' late father operated a grocery store in Livonia, New York, where most of the family got a start in the food business before all migrated west.

Pete was born in Livonia but came to San Francisco after his father's death. He attended Sacred Heart School there.

Cala resides at 260 Verano drive, Daly City, with his wife, Joan, and children Mike, eight, and Jimmy, one.

SM County Recorders Office To Get Money-Saving System

A modern recording system that will save San Mateo County an estimated $18,035 a year will be put into operation about March 1, 1963, Ruth Kirste, county recorder, announced this week.

The system, employing an automated electrostatic reproduction process by which recordings are printed in reduced size for public reference books from 35 millimeter microfilm, was devised by the Mark Larwood Company of Redwood City.

Completion of the modernization program in the San Mateo County recorder's office will bring to 22 the number of counties in California using the Larwood recording system.

The system represents the latest development in modern land record registration and maintenance procedures and is being used by 45 counties in the western United States.

"We are particularly proud to have Miss Kirste make this changeover because of the enviable reputation she holds with her fellow recorders and because San Mateo is one of California's prestige counties with a volume of recordings greater than that of San Francisco," Mark Larwood, president of the Larwood company, said.

Miss Kirste explained that conversion to the new recording system will require no capital expenditure and that the savings it will bring will begin accruing immediately upon putting it into operation.

She pointed out that, based on the 167,784 pages expected to be recorded during the 1962-1963 fiscal year, together with work handled for other county departments, the annual recording cost with the photocopy process now in use would be about $56,526.

She estimated that the Larwood system and the operational changes it will bring about would reduce that figure to $38,491 for a saving of $18,035.

Under the new system, documents presented for recording will be photographed with a 35 millimeter microfilm camera.

When reduced-size, rag bond pages for public reference books and a duplicate film for office use in the immediate reproduction of requested documents have been printed from the master film, it will be made a part of the county's permanent security file.

The Larwood recording system will replace a photo-copy process by which recordings are photographed on sensitized paper for insertion into public reference volumes which also constitute the county's official records.

Miss Kirste added that in addition to the immediate reduction in costs, the Larwood system will result in substantial, long-range savings in that

Huge Dog Obedience Show At San Mateo Fairgrounds

More than 2,000 purebred dogs from all over the United States will converge on the San Mateo County fairgrounds on November 18. They will be competing for 400 trophies and prizes at the San Mateo Kennel Club's 59th annual all-breed Dog Show and Obedience Trials.

In addition to the extensive competition among 122 different breeds, seven specialty shows this year will draw attention to the Borzoi, Airedale Terrier, Cocker Spaniel, Fox Terrier, Kerry Blue Terrier, Chihuahua and Brussels Griffon, each show staged by a club devoted to the raising and improvement of that particular breed.

This year's San Mateo Kennel Club competition, already recognized as one of the finest dog shows in the country, will be the largest yet, predicts William F. Fox, secretary-treasurer of the club.

In addition to the highlight event on Saturday, November 17, the Poodle Club of Central California will hold its fourth Specialty Show and Obedience Trials as a bonus feature of the canine competition. This show will also be held at the fairgrounds in San Mateo.

Besides 11 home-state judges, purebred dog authorities from Long Island, N. Y.; Vancouver, B. C.; Detroit, Mich., and Kalamazoo, Mich., will be on hand to judge this year's crop of prize-winners.

Business Purpose Needed, Says Prof.

Profits as a business objective alone many not only antagonize employees but mislead managers, claims a university business professor in a new book, "Business Organization and Management."

Director of the management center at the University of Santa Clara, Dr. Joseph M. Trickett is co-author of the book with Dr. E. G. Plowman, special consultant on transportation with the United States Department of Commerce and formerly vice president of U. S. Steel Corp.

"A business organization," Dr. Trickett explains in a section of the text, "can be no better than its people permit or want it to be. Hence, business management must have purposes and must develop ways of stating these purposes which will foster their approval. Profits, as an objective, will not fulfill the requirement. Such an objective may not only antagonize employees, it may even misdirect and mislead managers."

Pyracanthas Are Berried Beauties

The most striking color of fall in California often comes from beautiful berried shrubs—especially Pyracantha. On a crisp, sunlit October day, they provide the garden with a background of orange and red, contrasting sharply and appealingly with Chrysanthemums and other seasonally colorful foreground material.

One can't help being aware of these showy numbers. They are standouts in any neighborhood this time of year, and falling to plant them in his own yard, the gardener deprives himself of something special.

Pyracantha shrubs are not only nice to look at in the garden, but they provide us with wonderful decoration indoors. What can match the mantelpiece which features vividly colored Pyracanthas? Is anything more suitable than the orange berried varieties at Thanksgiving and the red-berried varieties during the Christmas holiday?

The list of Pyracanthas is considerably longer than it once was, for as with many another favorite, shrub, it has undergone the improvements of hybridization. You find several red berried varieties and more than one orange-berried beauty. There is a new prostrate form, too, which was hardly available a decade ago. This latter is the Santa Cruz Pyracantha, and those who try it discover an excellent ground cover, especially on sunny slopes.

Of the upright, red-berried forms, the variety Gruberi is probably best known. Others available include Government Red, Victory and Katan. Some of these are offered by members of the California Association of Nurserymen in specially trained shapes. You'll find tree forms, pyramidal forms and espaliers. Pyracanthas lend themselves well to espalier treatment, and given time, one shrub will cover a good sized garden wall with whatever pattern you train it in. Nursery-started espaliers make the job much easier. In planting an espalier don't crowd it up too closely against the house or garden wall. Give its base some air—at least a foot of it between trunk and wall.

We concentrate so heavily on the fall merits of Pyracanthas that we often overlook their attractive spring bloom. The flowers are small and white and anything but inconspicuous. So profuse can they be that the impression is one of a foamy blanket over the shrub. They are not spectacular beside some more exotic spring bloom, but they are nonetheless eye-catching and definitely a bonus when you consider that the shrubs are planted primarily for fall berries.

Pyracanthas are happiest in a soil that is on the sweet side—not acid. Since most California soils meet this requirement naturally, such a liking should cause you no concern. But if acidity is known to exist, mix some garden lime into the soil before planting.

After-planting care consists mainly of watering the shrubs, especially in the early years and of pruning occasionally to eliminate twiggy, unattractive growth or to shape the plant. A happy practice in this respect is to do any such pruning during the season of the berry crop so that the prunings may be used indoors for arrangements.

In the garden, Pyracanthas may be used as background shrubs, as featured specimens in the rear of a border, or against any sunny wall or fence. Their use as ground covers and as espaliered coverings has already been referred to above. They are thorny as thorny can be, so refrain from planting them within shoulder-rubbing distance of paths and walks.

Planting them during this, berry season, permits you to pick and choose just the variety you want from C.A.N. nursery selections.

Worship services will be held at 9:30 and 11 a.m. with nursery care provided during both services. The Church School convenes at 9:30 a.m. with classes for all ages.

Teens Talk For Holy Angel's Fete

Parents of a hard-working group of teen-agers from Holy Angels parish in Colma didn't voice their usual complaints when their sons and daughters reached for the telephone the past few weeks.

The reason: These youngsters weren't wasting time their calls were part of an intensive effort by the members of the Holy Angels Teen Club to contribute to the overall success of this week's parish festival, "Carnival Americana."

When the festival was planned, the teens took on the responsibility of contacting every one of the more than 2,500 families in the parish. Their mission was to promote ticket returns and spark attendance to the four-day affair, running Thursday through Sunday, November 8-11.

Armed with lists of 50 or more names, the boys and girls have kept at it doggedly. Festival chairman Tom Noonan summed up the importance of their project: "Much of the success of our festival this year is in the hands of these kids. They've already put us away head of last year. The way they have pitched in has set a standard the other organizations are having a hard time living up to."

Looks like here's one group of teens who may have "talked" themselves into an annual job.

Name Jewish Welfare Federation Chairman

She will direct the efforts of 1,000 door-to-door volunteers in the following areas: Colma, Marina, Park Presidio, Richmond, Seacrest and Sunset, plus Daly City.

How Rapid Transit will shrink the Bay Area

RAPID TRANSIT will produce dramatic time savings, and the two maps above, drawn to an identical scale of travel time between cities, illustrate how rapid transit would shrink the Bay Area just as the jet airplane has brought world points closer together. The map on the left illustrates the best possible rush-hour travel times today by available means of transportation. The map on the right shows the dramatic rush-hour savings in travel time that would be made possible by rapid transit's 70-mile-an-hour trains operating free of congestion on private rights-of-way. Typical examples for San Franciscans include Daly City to Market and Montgomery: 25 minutes now, 12 minutes with rapid transit. Mar-Oakland: 25 minutes now, eight minutes with rapid transit. The $792,000,000 rapid transit bond proposal is Proposition "A" on the November 6 ballot.

'Engines' Key To Energy Process

The tiny "engines" in green plants that store the world's energy have been recognized, and a detailed theory of how they operate has been proposed.

The work, performed by the Bio-Organic group in the University of California's Lawrence Radiation Laboratory at Berkeley, and supported by the Atomic Energy Commission, was described recently by Dr. Melvin Calvin, Nobel Laureate and director of the group.

Dr. Calvin was awarded the Nobel Prize last year for working out over a period of years the chemical cycle of photosynthesis, in which green plants convert simple materials—water, carbon dioxide, and sunlight—into sugars, proteins, and other complex energy compounds that maintain life on earth.

Delivering the annual G. N. Lewis Lecture at Berkeley, the scientist described more recent work on the plant "machinery" which channels captured sunlight into the chemical system. Scientists have known for decades that sunlight is captured by chlorophyll, the complex pigment responsible for the green color of plants. Chlorophyll molecules are contained in complex organs of chloroplast cells.

Dr. Calvin said that the segments of the chloroplast responsible for energy conversion are tiny particles containing about 200 chlorophyll molecules.

He said these particles, which he and his colleagues call "quantasomes," apparently are the smallest structures which can carry out the conversion of light energy to chemical energy. The particles are about 200 angstrom units (five thousand millionths of an inch) in diameter.

Moreover, when the scientist and his colleagues oriented the quantasomes by strong electric fields, they determined that 10 to 20 of the 200 chlorophyll molecules within the quantasome were responsible for funneling all of the light energy captured by the particle to a single site where the conversion takes place. The scientist believes the particles act like tiny photocells.

Vista Grande School Visits Two Farms

Two second grade classes from Vista Grande, with their teachers—Miss Scott and Mrs. Coidesina—went by bus to Half Moon Bay to visit two farms on Thursday, October 25. The first farm was run by high school students who will be Future Farmers. There the children saw sheep, calves, a machine being welded and a tractor in operation.

The classes then went to the Sunshine dairy farm, where they saw the cows and the milking machines.

Both classes have been studying the farm and learned a great deal from the trip.

The first census taken in 1790 resu ed in one congressional representative for every 30,000 persons, compared to every 415,000 persons in 1960.

WORLD TRIP—John Bogardus, a Westlake resident living in the Coronado Apartments, was the top winner in Westlake Shopping Center's Travel Fair drawing last week. He won a trip around the world, or a trip to any major city in the world. Mr. Bogardus (center) is shown with two Pan American Airways hostesses, who assisted in the drawing, and U. R. Kendree (right), managing director of Westlake

Shopping Center, and Stan Sugarman, president of the Westlake Merchants' Association. Bob Feddersen, 651 Skyline drive, and A. Andrews, 349 Delano Avenue, San Francisco, both won trips to Hawaii.

Aristocrat Of The Garden—The Lily

Wonderful things have happened to garden lilies in the last generation. Thanks to plant hybridists in our pacific northwest, these once common plants have become the aristocrats of our summer gardens.

Contrary to a common misconception these elegant "bulbs" are quite easy to grow. They thrive under garden conditions when given a well-drained location, with sun or part shade and sufficient water to keep them happy. But before considering these needs, let's look at the wide variety of wonderful lilies offered by the California Association of Nurserymen.

Many of us recall the time when we simply went to the nursery and ordered a few "tiger" lilies for our gardens. Today, we have the choice of dozens of different types and all of them are few superior to the old "tigers" we used to plant.

The new look can include lilies with trumpet blooms the size of a real trumpet, or cup-size blossoms with delicately ruffled and reflexed petals. They vary in color from creamy white to fiery orange and scarlet tones. Some blossoms are heavily spotted or marked, while others may change gently from one delicate shade to another. Your nurseryman has pictures to guide your selection.

Among the highly prized of the new lilies are the Aurelian hybrids. These are hybrids of a trumpet type lily and a lily with the recurving petal form. The result is a happy combination of both types. Some Aurelians are nearly true trumpets, others have recurving petals. The flowers are huge and the plant itself is often over head height, carrying up to two dozen blossoms per stalk.

There is many another wonderful hybrid in the family Liliaceae. You'll find the Mid Century Hybrids, Bellingham Hybrids, Olympic Hybrids, Fleeta Hybrids, Harlequin Hybrids, Exotic Hybrids and others, no doubt, will continue to appear as the hybridists continue their work. One thing is common to all of them and that is beauty. You have to grow them to realize just how beautiful they can be, for no picture really does them credit.

In the garden, these new-look lilies can be used best when grouped in the flower border, but their adaptability permits using them in pots and tubs and in wild setting, where scattered bulbs give wonderful "natural" effects. Many of them are enchantingly fragrant, adding this asset to the many others.

Try planting them in and about Delphiniums or with nearby clumps of Red Hot Poker. You can plant summer annuals and perennials as a base for lilies to grow up through. They are also striking when intermixed with easy-growing Daylilies and with tall border Phlox. Use your own imagination here and let it run wild.

Lilies are one of the ideal flowers for cutting. If you cut them when the first lower blossoms along the stalk begin to open, they will continue to open indoors until the whole stalk is abloom. And when you consider that as many as two dozen blossoms can appear on one plant, this makes for striking displays. Be sure not to take too much of the flower stalk when cutting, for this weakens the plant. Cut the stalk above the foliage, leaving that to ripen off and restore energy to the bulb.

In selecting and planting lilies, care should be taken to plant the bulbs as soon as possible. Unlike daffodils and tulips, lily bulbs are never completely dormant and leaving them unplanted will seriously weaken them.

Choose a spot in sun or part shade, the amount of either depending on how far you live from the coast. Coastal gardeners can give their lilies full sun, but inland, and in warmer sections of the state, part shade is the rule. They are ideally suited to sloping land, since this provides the natural drainage they are happiest with. Where a slope does not exist, simply make sure that the soil drains well and that water will not stand around the bulb. Raised beds make excellent planting sites.

Mixing leaf mold and manure into the planting hole is a common practice and a good one. Bone meal may be placed under

New 'Hyper-Nucleus' Discovered At UCLA

Discovery of a new type of nitrogen nucleus, the heaviest yet found, was announced by UCLA physicists, thus fitting into place one more identifiable member of a strangely puzzling new series of elements having normal chemical properties but unstable nuclei (now called hyper-nuclei).

"The finding of this newest heavyweight nucleus indicates that it may prove possible to make hyper-nuclei that correspond to all normal nuclei," says Dr. Derek Prowse of the UCLA physics department, where the research was done with the cooperation of staff members of the Lockheed California Company's Biophysics Research Laboratory. "If so, we may find that there exists a complete periodic table of elements with normal chemical properties but with unstable nuclei."

A normal nucleus, Dr. Prowse explains, consists of neutrons and protons. But in a hyper-nucleus one of the neutrons is replaced by a lambda hyperon, a particle that is neutral and that in some ways behaves like a neutron but is actually unstable, so that it decays in one-billionth of a second.

Hyper-nuclei, he says, can be made only by using high-energy accelerators. "We used a powerful beam of negatively charged K-meson particles from the University of California, Berkeley, radiation laboratory's beatron," he says, "and we bombarded a special block of photographic emulsion in which the tracks of individual particles would be recorded. One of these K-meson particles collided with the nucleus of a nitrogen atom in the photographic emulsion, changing one of its neutrons into a lambda hyperon and producing at the same time a pion particle. The 'new' nitrogen hyper-nucleus traveled a short distance—only about one-thousandth of a centimeter—then it decayed into a normal oxygen nucleus and another pion particle."

the bulb, but not in direct contact with it. A mulch of part moss is beneficial, especially in the summer, when it conserves moisture and helps to keep the soil cool. Once established, a lily has an unusually long life, and the gardener can look forward to its beauty for years to come.

Toto's Restaurant & Pizzeria For Food and Beverage at its Best

The many people who have dined at Toto's Restaurant and Pizzeria, 1913 Junipero Serra boulevard, in Daly City since 1957, can attest to the delicious food served there, but many may have missed the cocktail lounge with its distinctive sunken fireplace and colorful photo-mural of the Bay of Napoli. The mural was personally taken by the owners, Frank and Ida Spadarella, on one of their trips to Europe. Shown in the photo above from left to right are Frank Spadarella, owner; Ray Cook, bartender; Carol Wolf, hostess.

Toto's Restaurants and Pizzeria derive their name from Antonio Spadarella, who first established the family in the restaurant business 23 years ago (1939) in Brooklyn.

The newly remodeled Toto's Restaurant, 1913 Junipero Serra, was designed by architect Donald Sandy, who incorporated traditional Italian and contemporary themes. The expanded restaurant represents an investment in excess of $150,000.00.

A Bit Of Agatha At Hillbarn Playhouse

"Be on time. There's a murder in the first three minutes!" This is the warning by Hillbarn playhouse for their opening play of the fall season that started Friday, October 26, at 8:30, Agatha Christie's "The Unexpected Guest."

Old master Christie can afford to let the audience in on such a minor matter as the actual murder. She depends on her agile pen to keep up interest and excitement until the final impact of her brain-twisting surprise ending. Needless to say, Hillbarn's announcement doesn't say "Who done it!"

Wayne Warren plays a stranger who discovers a murdered man and a wife, gun in hand and making a dazed confession. But the play doesn't end thus before it begins. As the London Evening News reviewer wrote, "...when the murder seems solved and all the ends tie up...Miss Christie pulls her almighty knock-out-punch. From a dazed, horizontal position I admit her complete victory!"

Bob Bensi, Anne Cross, Ron Doyle, Muriel Rice, Peter Burfield, Eric Whyte, Rockwell Stone and Charles Henderson complete a cast that seems destined to suit the mettle of those who were sturdy enough to survive the suspense of the World Series.

The play will continue at the Hillbarn playhouse in Belmont on Friday and Saturday nights. Reservations telephone LYteli 3-3171.
